TRELLE WINS WHEAT CHAMPIONSHIP FOR CANADA

Capt. J. W. Troup Ends Notable Career Builder of C.P.R. Coast Service Is Called By Death

His Great Foresight and Enterprise Was Factor in the Development of British Columbia; as Manager of B.C. Coast Service He Created Magnificent Fleet Which To-day Has No Peer in the World; Most Outstanding and Picturesque Marine Figure in Pacific Coastwise Shipping Annals

Capt. James W. Troup, for the last sixty years identified with shipping development on the Pacific Coast, for thirty-six years linked with British Columbia's progress and for twenty-six years manager of the B.C. Coast Service of the Canadian Pacific Railway, died suddenly at his home on Maitland Street at 2.30 o'clock this morning, his passing coming as a great shock to his many friends everywhere.

The foresight which marked Capt. Troup's guidance of the B.C. Coast Service and his part in the development of Victoria and the province generally, was demonstrated in every executive position he had held and made him one of the outstanding marine figures of the Pacific Coast.

The present fleet of Princesses of the B.C. Coast Service owes its existence to Capt. Troup. The steamer Princess Victoria, built thirty years ago as the first unit of the modern fleet and the speediest boat of her day, was known as "Capt. Troup's folly," so termed because many believed the ship was years ahead of her time and that the designer was planning to prepare for the future he saw as a man of great vision.

HELPED PORT'S GROWTH

How his foresight was justified is now history. The ports of Victoria and Vancouver owe their present position to the foresight, determination and loyalty to Capt. Troup, and the present magnificent coast fleet which has no peer anywhere in the world, is his creation. He realized the great future of the Pacific Coast in shipping development and made plans to prepare for the future he saw as a man of great vision.

It was Capt. Troup who saw the possibilities of marine development between the cities of Victoria, Vancouver and Seattle and brought about the establishment of the famous "Triangle" service which links up the three ports within an eighty-mile radius of each other and which over his progress largely to the operation of the Canadian Pacific fleet.

RETIRED THREE YEARS AGO

Just over three years ago, on September 1, 1928, Capt. Troup, after retiring, (Concluded on page 6)

The Ida S. Dow is a 141-ton schooner owned by the New England Maritime Company, Boston, and has been engaged in general freight traffic. She ordinarily carries a crew of eleven.

DEATH TAKES NOTED MARINE LEADER

THE LATE CAPT. JAMES W. TROUP

China Aids Forward Manchuria Scheme

Canadian Press and Associated Press Dispatches

Nanking, Nov. 30.—Immediate acceptance of the League of Nations Council's proposal to establish a neutral zone in Manchuria between the Chinese and Japanese forces was announced to-day by the Nanking government.

The Chinese commander at Chinchow has been directed to convey this information to foreign observers there.

The League plan, embodied in a resolution originally proposed by Aristide Briand, would set up a neutral zone between Chinchow and Mukden to prevent any collision between the troops of Jap and China.

THE FOREIGN OFFICE here said that from the Chinese viewpoint the situation at Chinchow now was entirely in the hands of observers appointed by the several powers and now on the spot.

This afternoon Marmour Shigemitsu, Japanese Minister, went into conference with Dr. Wellington Koo, the new Foreign Minister of the Nanking government, presumably with reference to establishment of the neutral zone.

MADE PLAIN TO JAPANESE
Paris, Nov. 30.—The proposal of the League of Nations Council to send neutral observers into Manchuria to pave the way to peace does not constitute an "interposition of third parties" to which the Japanese government objects, Chairman Aristide Briand replied in a note to Ambassador Yoshizawa.

M. Briand expressed the belief a misunderstanding existed regarding the council's plan.

"Exclusionary measures" for saving human life are contained in the Council's proposal, he said, and these "may be taken without prejudice to other proposals which your government may wish to submit to the Chinese government."

The Council's proposal provided for sending observers to Manchuria for two purposes. They were to examine the possibility of establishing a neutral zone between the Chinese and Japanese troops of initiating any other system calculated to prevent a clash, and they were to co-operate to consider means of establishing a liaison between the Chinese and Japanese commanders "with a view to making the necessary arrangements" for preventing hostilities.

TO AVOID CONFLICT
"Within these limits," the Japanese minister said, "the government will, of course, always be prepared to give the fullest consideration to any means of avoiding a conflict."

Japan's restatement of its position created new apprehension in the League quarters over the efforts of the Council. M. Briand planned to remove this apprehension, as well as Japan's apparent objection to neutral observers, in his note to-day.

JAPAN EMBASSY IN LONDON IS ATTACKED BY MEN

London, Nov. 30.—A band of more than thirty men attacked the Japanese Embassy on Portman Square here yesterday evening and tried to force an entry, but escaped into a thick fog as police arrived.

Windows of the embassy were broken in the attack, the purpose of which was unknown to the authorities. The embassy staff was absent, except for a caretaker, who telephoned the police.

CAMPAIGN NOW WELL UNDER WAY

Thirty-seven in Field For Civic Offices

With radio talks, special meetings and the regular campaign routine, candidates in the civic elections to-day were in the midst of one of the most active fights this city has had for a number of years.

Three more sets of nomination papers had been filed up to noon to-day, and contests for every vacant seat were assured. The list of tentative candidates was increased to thirty-seven with the announcement that Arthur Hinder, salesman, 50 Moss Street, will run on the ticket of the Victoria Ratepayers' Association. This is the largest number seeking office at one polling in many years.

The interest shown by the general public is conveyed in the unusually large number of registrations on the voters' list. The revised and printed list was issued today and shows 12,189 people registered, including property owners, licensees, householders.

A total of eighty members will be elected.

Premier G. W. Forster, speaking before a great crowd in Auckland yesterday evening, said the real issue in the election was the maintenance of New Zealand's good name by safe-

RAINFALL FOR YEAR ALREADY ABOVE USUAL

Precipitation For Eleven Months Exceeds Average For Year Here

Temperatures Lower Than Usual; Sun Shone During Twenty-four Days

Farmers and garden cultivators of Victoria and the surrounding districts were given a hopeful note in this month's weather report with the announcement that the average precipitation for the year had already been passed and the ground, which, for some seasons, has suffered from lack of moisture, had been well supplied.

Milder weather here, with the possibility of more rain during the next two days, was forecast by F. Napier Denison.

With the November rainfall standing at 5.28 inches, 1.03 above the average, the total for the last eleven months reached twenty-seven inches. The usual figure for that period is twenty-two inches.

Rain fell during fifteen days of this month. On two days the precipitation was over an inch.

With the exception of April, July and October, the rainfall has been well above average. Should the city experience its usual precipitation during December, which is 4.81 inches, the total for the year will be over nine inches above the ordinary.

But, although the rain fell for fifteen days, the sun also shone during twenty-four.

TEMPERATURES LOW
Temperatures generally were below the average by two degrees, the mean being thirty-three degrees.

November 29 was the warmest day of the month, when the mercury in the standard scale at the top of the hill stood at fifty-six.

Minimum varied according to the location of the thermometer.

At the upper station the coldest recorded in the standard screen was thirty degrees on November 21, while on November 29 the thermometer stood at sixteen on the ground at the foot of the hill. Twenty-three degrees was the lowest recorded in the standard screen at the lower level. This mark was set on November 22.

Speaking on conditions generally, Mr. Denison stated cold still prevailed in the interior of the province, while milder weather was being experienced in the north and could be looked for here.

Irish Republican Army Weakened By Men's Trials

Dublin, Irish Free State, Nov. 30.—Sentence was deferred on the first two defendants in the trial of the new military tribunal created under the recently enacted Public Safety Act.

Daniel McKiernan and Peter Mitchell, two farmers' sons from County Leitrim, were charged with illegal possession of firearms. McKiernan told the court that if he were released he would give up his connection with the Irish republican army and induce his friends to do so. Mitchell, who was with McKiernan when he was arrested, said he was not a member of the Irish republican army.

The court ruled both would be released pending sentence, and both were directed to find bail within ten days.

LONDON TO-DAY UNDER FOG

London, Nov. 30.—A yellow fog of the real "pea soup" variety enveloped London to-day on the heels of a grey one yesterday which blotted out virtually all of England from Yorkshire to the south coast and was still prevalent to-day.

In London, fortunately, it hung well above the roofs and, although the city was in almost midnight darkness traffic was only moderately affected as lights of motor cars and blazing street lamps enabled drivers and pedestrians to find their way.

Yesterday's fog reduced traffic to a snail's pace and tied up air liners and coastal shipping to a great extent.

DEATHS IN SASKATOON INVESTIGATED

Police Seek to Discover What Killed M. T. Savage and Mrs. Alice Hayes

Saskatoon, Sask., Nov. 30.—In mysterious deaths, which baffled police, the bodies of two well-known residents of this city were found yesterday morning in an optician's office in the main part of this city.

Cause of the deaths was not ascertained by autopsies, conducted yesterday afternoon by Dr. W. S. Lindsay, University of Saskatchewan pathologist, and an analysis of the organs of both victims is to be made by the provincial analyst at Regina.

The dead: Milo T. Savage, forty-seven, optician and for twenty years a resident of Saskatoon, and Mrs. Alice (Concluded on page 6)

U.S. CONGRESS TO DEBATE TARIFF

Washington, Nov. 30.—Strong indication of Democratic plans to repeal just the tariff in the coming Congress was conveyed in a statement yesterday by Representative Rainey of Illinois through the party's national committee.

Mr. Rainey, prospective House Democratic floor leader, said "the time has come for constructive tariff action and something must be done to bring down world tariff walls."

GANDHI SAYS INDIA MASSES AWAIT SIGNAL

But He Will Study Situation For Time Before Calling For Disobedience

London, Nov. 30.—Mahatma Gandhi, saying he could not foresee the independence for India he came here to seek at the Round-Table Conference, to-day prepared to sail for home next Saturday.

"There is going to be hell," the little man said yesterday as he plodded through slushy streets on his regular early morning walk at 4 a.m., looking even more hostile in the raw, cold fog. "I leave Saturday for Bombay. There we shall take up again our weaponless battle against England."

With his head bowed, his shoulders drooping and his homespun shawl pulled tight around his scrawny body, he added:

"I came here expecting nothing and I leave with nothing."

"We must again go through suffering," he continued after a moment's silence. "It seems God's will that we must take up our heavy cross again and carry it to the end."

His voice sounded sepulchral as it came through the thick fog to the listeners at his side.

"How soon after your return to India will you begin the battle," he was asked.

"The masses of Indian are only awaiting my signal," he replied, "but I think I shall study conditions a while before I give it."

"Do you expect the British to put you in jail again?" was the next question.

"Yes, I expect to be the guest of the government again at the Yeroda jail," he answered. "Or they may deport me—but the fight will go on."

Asked what effect a possible resort to arms would have on India, he countered: "What effect can these toys have on people who are starving for their liberty?"

Chicago, Nov. 30.—Whatever the practice among monarchs who head nations, Herman Trelle of Wembley, Alberta, proved here to-day that wheat kings can succeed themselves, by being acclaimed the wheat king of the International Grain and Hay Show for the second consecutive year.

Because for the first time in the history of the Grain and Hay Show, one individual has been crowned wheat king three times, 1926, 1930 and 1931, Mr. Trelle will be awarded the International Wheat Cup to keep permanently.

Mr. Trelle was given the title to-day for the best durum wheat, springing a surprise, for he took the title last year on the showing of his hard red spring wheat. Of the five classes of wheat, durum is usually considered the least powerful of contenders for the title, hard red spring or hard red winter being usually the king winners.

Mr. Trelle, however, upset the prophecies of yesterday, surprising doers by taking third in the hard red spring, bowing to a fellow-Albertan, Joseph H. B. Smith of Wolf Creek, who took second, and to C. H. Gilbert of Big River, Sask., who was given first.

C. R. SMITH RESERVE
C. Edson Smith of Corvallis, Montana, was given reserve for his showing in the white spring wheat class. Mr. Smith has scored as heavily as Saskatchewan usually being the contender in that field.

Mr. Trelle estimates his durum will yield somewhere between forty and sixty bushels to the acre, though he refused to give an exact estimate. The fact that he failed to take the first award in hard red spring wheat was explained when it was learned the judges had not poured the samples as they did with the durum. Had they done so there is small doubt Mr. Trelle would have taken his usual first in that division.

The fact that the durum was raised in Northern Alberta makes the award all the more significant, for it comes to a great degree to its culture. Mr. Trelle, a former grand champion athlete himself from the University of Alberta and a veteran and member of the Great War is now suffering from what was once a bad case of (Concluded on page 6)

MILD WEATHER DEFEATS TESTS

Canadian Press
North Bay, Ont., Nov. 30.—Seeking "sub-Arctic" weather to test the performance of certain grades of oil and gasoline under winter conditions, an elaborately fitted expedition from a large oil company returned here Saturday from Moose Harbor, disappointed.

The party was sure of finding extreme cold, but was forced to spend most of its time tiding and picking wild flowers. The best the men got was an inch of snow, wholly inadequate for their purposes, and the thermometer persistently refused to hit zero.

They had two trucks fitted with caterpillar wheels in the rear and skis in the front for use in snowdrifts. A special train brought the equipment back.

U.S. NAVY DISCUSSION

Washington, Nov. 30.—On the heels of controversy between President Herbert Hoover and proponents of a larger United States navy, Secretary Charles F. Adams has reminded the President of a belief within the service that more ships are needed.

In his annual report Mr. Adams says sentiment exists that greater appropriations are needed to provide adequately for a minimum requirements within treaty limits.

CHILDREN ARE VICTIMS OF FIRE IN HOME

Three Burned to Death at Fork River, Manitoba

Canadian Press

Fork River, Man., Nov. 30.—Three children of William Berkis, playing upstairs when fire broke out in their two-story frame home here, were burned to death shortly before noon yesterday. Mr. Berkis, his wife and four other children escaped from a downstairs room, but were unable to reach the trio of youngsters trapped above.

The victims were Hilda Berkis, six; Elmer, four; and Nelson, eighteen months.

The three children were playing on the second floor when fire broke out in a bedroom. Flames blocked the stairway and the trio were unable to escape by going downstairs. Unable to aid the trapped tots from inside, the father and mother attempted to break into the upper story windows, but were forced back by dense smoke and fire.

The house was completely destroyed and only a few articles of furniture were saved. Charred remains of the three victims were recovered from the blackened debris late in the day.

Fork River is 100 miles northwest of Winnipeg, near Lake Winnipegosis.

FLANDIN GOES HOME TO PARIS FROM LONDON

Canadian Press

London, Nov. 30.—The "mystery visit" to Great Britain of Pierre Flandin, French Finance Minister, ended today, when he left for Paris. The visit has stirred political circles over the week-end.

Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary, and a number of friends saw M. Flandin off. The French Minister had declined to discuss the object of his visit except to say it was a shooting trip. He was a member of Sir Gomer Berry's party which went pheasant hunting in Buckinghamshire Saturday, but it was revealed, nevertheless, that he was also a guest yesterday at an informal dinner given by Sir John Simon at which Rt. Hon. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Rt. Hon. Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, were the other guests.

The belief is that the new British anti-dumping measures, in which France is much interested, were discussed and probably also international finance, especially the German situation.

REPORT SHOWS U.S. TRADE AT LOWER LEVEL

By Ken Clark, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington, Nov. 30.—Value of exports from the United States during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1931, dropped 37 per cent in value. Total exports were $2,984,000,000 and imports $2,432,000,000. Exports were 29 per cent below the five-year average 1922-1926.

These figures, given out in the annual report of the Secretary of Commerce, show that if adjustments are made for price changes, exports for the year against those of the previous year showed a drop of only 22 per cent. Value of exports to Canada fell approximately 35 per cent. Exports to Canada and Newfoundland in 1931 totaled $530,000,000 as against $830,000,000 in 1930 and $999,000,000 in 1929. Imports varied in much less degree. The figures for the same three years were $834,000,000, $487,000,000 and $516,000,000.

The report noted reduced purchases of newsprint, wood pulp, lumber and copper from Canada during the year.

CLOTHING IS GIVEN JOBLESS

Calgary, Nov. 30.—Clothing was being issued to jobless married men and their families here today. First applications were received this morning. The relief plan will be carried out to a total of $15,000.

Colder weather brought requests for clothing, and it is expected the cost will be borne one-third by the city, one-third by the province and one-third by the federal government.

Farm Board Sells 81-Cent Wheat For 54 Cents

Washington, D.C., Nov. 30.—Chairman Stone of the Federal Farm Board was subjected to a vigorous cross examination when he laid the report of the board made public before the Senate committee on agriculture. Senator Norris of Nebraska, Senator Brookhart of Iowa, and Senator Wheeler of Montana sought in vain to learn from the witness how much money had been lost by the board in its efforts to stabilize the prices of wheat and products period. They complained that nothing had been done to stabilize corn and livestock period.

Mr. Stone replied that stabilizing the price of wheat had a favorable effect upon the corn market. He said it would be impossible to know what the financial losses of the board would amount to until the holdings of wheat and cotton had been disposed of. On November 1 he said the board held over 1,300,000 bales of cotton for another year at least. He stated that the wheat being sold by the board now amounts to nearly 190,000,000 bushels, this wheat will be sold at the rate of 500,000 bushels a month.

The chairman added that the board had already sold some 47,000,000 bushels of wheat to foreign governments, he also stated that the average price paid by the board for the wheat it had purchased was 81 cents a bushel, while the average price received by the board for the wheat it had sold was between 53 and 54 cents a bushel.

MENCKEN SCORES UNIVERSITIES OF UNITED STATES

New York, Nov. 30.—Replying to a questionnaire sent him by a local college organ, H. L. Mencken, author, states the attention of college students in United States universities is concentrated on mean and trivial things. Very few of the professors who teach in them "are really civilized men, and relatively few of the students come from civilized homes. Thus, the cultural value of the college tends to approximate zero."

Mr. Mencken expresses a number of other pessimistic opinions concerning this country's colleges and also touches on the United States form of government, which he claims is hopelessly corrupt and incompetent.

Referring to the attitude of students regarding football, he says the objection to that game is not that football is evil in itself, but that any man who takes it too seriously is thereby degraded. "Too many young citizens of this country are being filled with a mean admiration of mean things," he states. "Certainly any young man who believes Knute Rockne was a great hero and Beethoven was a bore is not to be described as civilized. Such false values, it seems to me, are propagated in a wholesale manner by United States colleges."

AUTOMATIC HEAT!

Yes, but what kind?

FROM the standpoint of CONVENIENCE, LOW COST and SAFETY, the "underfeed" type of automatic coal stoker has no competitor. No other mechanical heating device is as inexpensive, or as economical, or as nearly 100 per cent. efficient. (Ask Canadian Sumner Iron Works about the "Iron Stoker".)

"Nanaimo-Douglas", "Nanaimo-Wellington" and "Comox" Coals, in the pea size, are particularly adaptable for the economical operation of automatic coal stokers.

For its convenience, the gas furnace is also highly recommended. (Ask the B.C. Electric Co.) . . . and don't overlook the fact that all gas manufactured in Vancouver and Victoria is made from these famous coals.

Whether for automatic or hand-fired furnaces, no other fuel can give you as much HEAT for so little money as ISLAND COAL.

CAPTAIN J. W. TROUP

THE PASSING OF CAPTAIN J. W. TROUP will occasion widespread regret, not only in Canada but also in many circles south of the international boundary line, since in many respects he was an outstanding international figure. There are very few, if any, men of action who have contributed so decisively to the development of the Pacific Northwest, or who have left so inspiring a memory of successful constructive effort, as this far-sighted, enterprising and resolute man who, starting as a deck-hand on a Columbia River steamer, became the trusted head of a big fleet of coasting vessels operating under the flag of one of the greatest transportation companies in the world.

Elsewhere in The Times to-day will be found a comprehensive account of Captain Troup's career. There it is recorded how, springing from a long line of sailors and river steamboatmen, he became a member of a crew of a Columbia River freighter at Portland when a mere youth; how his adaptability, skill and courage won him advancement and eventually a reputation which extended beyond the purlieus of the Columbia and attracted the attention of important transportation interests in British Columbia. It is more than fifty years since Captain Troup first visited Victoria preliminary to associating himself with a company operating a steamship service on the Fraser River, which old timers will remember as the Canadian Pacific Navigation Company. Subsequently he was engaged in transportation in the Kootenay and finally, after the Canadian Pacific Railway Company had acquired the interests of the principal company operating the British Columbia coastal services, became the head of what afterwards was the B.C. Coast Steamship Service.

It is now just thirty years since Captain Troup assumed the management of the coast steamship establishment of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, and within that period he effected a transformation which in the scope and character of the services involved probably is without parallel in the records of the Pacific Coast. While it is true that none of his plans could have been carried out without the approval of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's directors, it is equally true that not only did he originate the policy of expansion which followed his appointment as manager of the company's coast steamship service, but by his insistence and enthusiasm he virtually forced the company to adopt his recommendations. It is no secret that the president of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, then Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, and his board, authorized the construction of the ferry steamship Princess Victoria with the greatest reluctance, anticipating a heavy loss on operation. On his part Captain Troup staked his whole career, for if the forebodings of the company's executive were realized he would have been down and out.

The sequel to this rather critical situation, however, is well known. The Princess Victoria became a big success, so much so, in fact, that Shaughnessy and his directors instructed Captain Troup to build a bigger and better vessel. Incidentally, they had made a gratifying discovery. They found that in the manager of their coastal service here they had a man who possessed the rare combination of far-ranging vision, technical knowledge, sound business judgment and dynamic capacity for getting things done well. Such combinations are rare, even in the great Canadian Pacific Railway, and the company chieftains in Montreal knew it very well. The growth of the coast service under Captain Troup's direction is comparatively recent history and therefore needs no elaboration here.

It is impossible to overestimate the results of this expansion in their relation to the material progress of British Columbia. It stimulated traffic, necessitating the extension of numerous other services, the erection of hotels, the building of great docks and freight and passenger depots, while many industries owed their origin and perpetuation to the new era upon which Captain Troup had rung up the curtain.

Victoria's regret over the passing of Captain Troup will be deepened by the recollection of the tireless, practical interest he has shown in the city's welfare since it became his home more than thirty years ago. Apart from its appreciation of his many fine personal qualities, we recall that it was his influence which kept this port as the headquarters of the Canadian Pacific Coast Steamship Service. An expression of the city's recognition of Captain Troup's very effective contribution to its progress was given in a public function shortly before his retirement a few years ago, an occasion which he was proud to proclaim as one of the high-water marks of his career. To Mrs. Troup and her family The Times offers an expression of its sincere sympathy in their loss, in the certainty that in this respect it can speak for the community as a whole.

TRELLE AGAIN

FOR THE THIRD TIME IN FIVE YEARS Herman Trelle, the farmer from the Wembley district of Alberta, has captured the world's wheat crown at the Chicago Livestock Exposition. This comparative stranger to the grain growers of this continent startled the agricultural world in 1926 by winning the wheat and oats sweepstakes—the first time a single individual had captured both the coveted awards. He was then only thirty-one years of age and ten years previous, on his own admission, he scarcely knew wheat from oats. Last year he again won the wheat championship, and now he has repeated the performance. And nobody has ever won the wheat crown three times before.

The name of Trelle has been one to conjure with in the last few years. To migratory agriculturists the Peace River area has become the centre of interest, and the trek into that vast fertile hinterland has been immeasurably increased by the achievements of the young Wembley farmer. It is all the more astonishing that he should have carried off the premier wheat honors last year, and again this year, because for many months he has been handicapped with very indifferently health. To his wife, however, he attributed his success in 1930, as for several months of that year he was only able to do work of a light nature.

We get a glimpse of Trelle's affection for the area in which he has won fame from the fact that on many occasions since his victory at Chicago, in 1926 he has been approached by large colonization enterprises in the United States, with attractive offers for his services, but it is evident it will take a good deal to lure him from his Wembley farm. He and his persistent experimental work will now be more of an inspiration than ever to the pioneers who are opening up this great producing area of the Canadian west.

IN OPERATION TO-MORROW

ONE OF CANADA'S MOST INFLUENTIAL Conservative newspapers, The Montreal Star, has given Mr. Winston Churchill a piece of its editorial mind for trying to embarrass the National Government while the Statute of Westminster was in committee for second reading. It will be remembered that he demanded an amendment seeking to prevent the Irish Free State from tearing up the treaty of 1922 which created that Dominion. He persuaded forty-nine others to vote with him; but it was overwhelmingly defeated, of course, and the Montreal newspaper says his attack on the bill "is a fair measure of the distance to which Mr. Churchill and his rampant group of malcontents will go to embarrass a government of which he is—conspicuously—not a member."

As The Star points out, the Statute of Westminster is merely the keeping of a pledge which the British government gave to the representatives of the Overseas Dominions at the Imperial Conference of 1926, and which was confirmed at the conference which Mr. Bennett attended last year. To have broken it now, our Montreal contemporary observes, would have been "a serious and dangerous breach of faith." There never was any danger of the British government not keeping faith; but "the irresponsible Churchill," as The Star calls him, evidently could not restrain his reactionary tendencies.

The Statute of Westminster now has gone on to the statute books of Great Britain and will become effective to-morrow. It removes the last remaining legal anomalies which hitherto qualified, as far as the strict letter of imperial relationship was concerned, the equality of status which for some time previously the Dominions had enjoyed as a matter of practice. The famous Balfour report of 1926, hailed by all the important newspapers of Britain as a "great state document," contained the following definition of the mutual relation of Great Britain and the Dominions: "They are autonomous Communities within the British Empire, equal in status, in no way subordinate one to another in any aspect of their domestic or external affairs, though united by a common allegiance to the Crown, and freely associated as members of the British Commonwealth of Nations."

The report pointed out that the existing administrative, legislative, and judicial forms were not wholly in accord with this definition, but this was inevitable, since most of these forms dated back to a time considerably antecedent to the stage of constitutional development then reached. The statute which will become operative to-morrow, therefore, does away with the anomalous forms, repealing notably the Colonial Laws Validity Act, which left the British Parliament with the authority to disallow any Dominion measure which it felt conflicted with an imperial statute. While this authority, of course, was looked upon as a dead letter, it remained all the same. Legislation also affecting Dominion shipping now will be dealt with by the Dominion Parliaments as they think fit, instead of by the imperial Parliament. Indeed, no act passed by the British House in future will apply to the Dominions, except by their request and consent.

The Statute of Westminster does not affect the British North America Act, which is an imperial statute, but it provides that when the provinces of Canada have made up their minds what changes they would like made in it, a petition from the Dominion to Westminster will be followed by the desired action as a matter of course. To all intents and purposes, however, all that the declaration of 1926 means now has been written into law.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

BAGS, BIG AND SMALL
 The Toronto Star

When the Englishman goes out for a day's shooting he expects a big bag. Some letters of the late King Edward are being published. On November 2, 1880, he, as Prince of Wales, enjoyed two days' hunting with Lord Londonderry at Wynyard Park, Stockton-on-Tees. In a letter to Sir Arthur Paget he wrote: "In the two days' shooting at Wynyard we killed 7,843 head, out of which 5,817 were rabbits and 1,973 pheasants. Tomorrow I go to Waddesdon to shoot Baron Ferdinand's coveys and on Friday go to Sandringham." At the latter place the shooting was good. In four days there in early November, 1877, nine grouse accounted for 1,200 pheasants, 941 brace of partridges, 819 hares, 186 rabbits and 84 "various." This was all shooting, but it is not to be forgotten that royalty is invited or chooses to shoot where game abounds. A writer in The Field says that the late King Edward, while a good shot, did not compare in this respect with King George, who has long been recognized as one of the best shots in England.

Loose Ends

Some deeper philosophy concerning mankind—in a job and out of it—and a few words of comfort to the Mr. Beaks of the world.

By H. B. W.

THERE ARE several facts about the recent official executions across Bay which are interesting. I leave it for others to point out that if a couple of hundred civil servants had not been added to the payroll in the last three years it would not be necessary to fire that number now (though not the ones recently appointed, by the way). The many personal tragedies of this business don't bear thinking about, either, nor shall I suggest, like a base and querulous partisan, that if the civil service can carry on with a reduction of about 15 per cent, the cabinet might also be cut proportionately. What interests me as a philosopher is the way in which economics have outstripped politics in our civilization; or rather how politics have become entirely economic; that is to say, in a philosophic sense. One cannot say the same for them in a literal sense.

I MEAN THAT civil servants are denied the ordinary privileges of citizenship. True, they can vote, but that makes no real difference. They cannot influence their fellow citizens. They cannot take part in politics. They cannot make a public issue of their grievances as I, for instance, can utilize the public ear and the space of this newspaper to protest against the hideous condition of our road. In a sense, and properly so, a civil servant, in return for his job, waives the liberty quite sane. Then you can get on quite well. But if you don't face these things you will spend the remainder of your life waiting for the return of the good old days, of which there ain't going to be none no more. There is only one time for us to live our lives and that, unfortunately for us, is right now.

NO, THAT does not stop them; and I venture the shocking suggestion that if the servants were not allowed to vote, or even to hold land or contract debts or marry, there still would be lots of applications for job in the civil service. If it came to a choice between being a citizen without a job and a mere man with one, I think I know what the average fellow's choice would be. I am even prepared to accept the deplorable conclusion that most men would rather be slaves, if the conditions of slavery were humane, well-rewarded and comfortable, rather than be free men and go hungry.

THIS, WHEN you come to look at it, is a mighty change. A hundred years or so back men everywhere were willing to die and starve for the mere privilege of the franchise. They did so in large numbers, and they did so, imagining that it would end their troubles. And to-day, having got it, many men will not even bother to exercise it. The rest do not expect much from it, having been fooled too often. The reason is not, as some might imagine, that the nature of politics has changed. The reason is that civilization has changed. It used to be political, and a vote meant something. It used to be managed by parliaments and governments and people naturally wanted to have something to say about their election. But it is not any more. It has become a matter of politics, but a matter of economics. It is not managed in the long run by governments and parliaments but by the laws of trade, the flow of money. The final masters of the whole show, whether they speak directly or through governments, are the men of business, and I am bound to say that the men of business, in this time, like the large American business men who are not afraid to condemn the insane tariff policy of their own government, are showing much more intelligence than the world's politicians.

BUT IN a world of business and economics, it is no wonder that the average man, if he has any sense, regards the vote and all the old rallying cries of politics sceptically. He would rather be assured of a job. And in the end, our system of democracy will survive only if it can arrange that every willing man shall have an opportunity to work, not on government payrolls, at the expense of the taxpayers, but in private business to the taxpayers' advantage. If it does not, the attitude of the average man will assert itself. He will surrender his vote for a job. He will adopt some other system. Anybody who says that, of course, is a dangerous man and an enemy of society, even though all his interests, like mine, depend on the survival of the present system. Everybody who warns against breakers ahead, is accused nowadays of trying to sink the ship, even though he has all his fortune on board and cannot swim.

ALL THESE reprehensible notions I propounded just now to Mr. Beak, trying them on the dog, as it were, before inflicting them on the public. "When," asked Mr. Beak, standing beneath my window and slowly grinding them from side to side, "when is things going to settle down again? What I mean is, when is the blinkin' world going to get normal and all that?" There must be many Mr. Beaks in the world these days. In wishing for a return to normal, probably we are all Mr. Beaks, and it seems to me that it is time somebody told us the truth about this business. The truth, I regret to say, is that we are never going to return to normal, and the sooner we make up our minds to it the better.

I DO NOT mean we shall not have good times again. What I mean is that it will require all our lifetime to sort out the problems which we have already created, and we are busy creating new ones, like the Far Eastern situation, every day. By the time we die there will be so many problems still unsolved that our children will look back to this as the golden age when everything was simple and easy, and no one had to worry. This is quite inevitable in a period when machinery is altering the face of society every twenty-five years or so. If we could stop here and invent nothing new, and keep everybody quiet for a century or so, we might be able to catch up with our current problems and learn to use the forces we already possess. But I see no prospect of that. Nobody is willing to keep quiet, everybody is inventing something new.

THEREFORE, MAKE UP your mind, unhappy reader, that all your lifetime you are going to live in a frenzied world, a world which will seem quite mad to you and quite natural to your offspring who, as they grow older, will perceive certain signs of insanity in the new world which will have developed by this time. Make up your mind to it; just accept the fact that abnormality has become normal in our time, and insanity quite sane. Then you can get on quite well. But if you don't face these things you will spend the remainder of your life waiting for the return of the good old days, of which there ain't going to be none no more. There is only one time for us to live our lives and that, unfortunately for us, is right now.

Twenty-five Years Ago To-day

The Victoria Daily Times

November 30, 1906

From The Times File

Weather forecast—Victoria and vicinity—Light or moderate northerly and easterly winds, chiefly cloudy, with occasional rain.

On November 23, the first post office for Keen Island was formally opened, there being upwards of 100 in attendance. The event was made the occasion of some speaking and in reply to an address E. G. Russell of the Grand Trunk, made some appropriate remarks regarding the future of the place.

Captain E. Balmom arrived from the east yesterday, where he went some months ago on business. The captain says that the steam whaling steamer St. Lawrence, which was acquired for service on this coast, will reach Victoria in February.

Great interest is being taken by local lovers of the fistic art in the boxing tournament at the old Grand Theatre on Saturday, December 3. The main attraction will be the two-round contest between Frank Slavin and Mick Burley, which should prove one of the best exhibitions seen in this city for a long time.

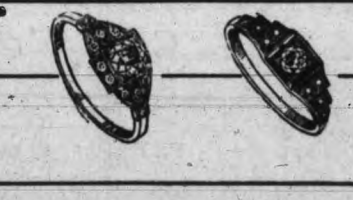

The city council discussed last evening the report of the special meeting on trades licenses. Many interesting opinions were given, but as far as anything definite being done with regard to the curtailing of licenses, the meeting proved abortive.

With eighty-three barrels of whale oil and ten tons of fertilizer, the steamer Tees, Captain Townsend, arrived from the West Coast ports last evening, bringing a large number of passengers, twenty-five of whom were Chinese, who came from Uchuekisset.

From Lisbon Capt. Hinkler expected to fly to England, the dispatch said.

IT WAS

To the Editor—I am sure it could have been only an over-ought on the part of your writer, because of especially good work in the part of some of the young women of the production—that he failed to pay tribute to the really clever and delightful playing of the role of Canon Chausable by Herbert E. Pott in the presentation of Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest" at the Crystal Garden little theatre this week.

ONE WHO WAS THERE

SESSONAL INDEMNITIES

To the Editor—When he told the Conservative convention at Nanaimo how the unhappy city-member of the Legislature was called upon to spend all his sessional indemnity on subscriptions, Mr. Reginald Hayward, M.P.P., put his finger on one of the particularly weak spots in our democratic electoral customs.

Then, so often, are chosen for office not on their fitness, but on the basis of the number and size of their subscriptions and donations in their community.

Perhaps under the revealed circumstances of this system of government indirectly bonusing needy constituents, the complaints over high sessional indemnities in these times of depression might be removed by the government charging the indemnities to general relief accounts.

RELIEVED.

AT OTTER POINT

To the Editor—I wish to make an appeal on behalf of the men in this camp. There are over 100 men here at present. We are not working, only doing the necessary work around the camp. The government is supplying us with accommodation and good meals. These camps have been open now for over two months. During that time we have had no visitors, or anyone to take an interest in the men. What are all the Victoria Christian organizations and service club thinking of. Here is practical Christianity at their doors and yet nothing has been done by any of them so far.

We would appreciate a visit occasionally from some of the various organizations, with some good magazines and books. We, who are out here through no fault of our own, feel that we have a claim on those who are at present in better circumstances, and that we are entitled to a little consideration. Just think of our position! A body of men in a camp far from a city, without a daily paper, magazines, books or games of any kind.

Our churches and clubs preach and talk a great deal about social service, brotherhood, etc., and here are a body of men and no one seems to care. We feel that we are forgotten by our loved ones, and that no one takes any interest in us.

I hope this letter will result in some effort being made to provide literature and a means of recreation to help brighten these dull days and nights.

The writer is an ex-member of one of the Victoria's leading churches, and I feel ashamed of the Victoria Christians when I hear what is said about the church and religion, because the men have indeed good reason to say, as I heard one man say with much bitterness, "What do the churches or the people care. We can all go to hell. We are down and out and nobody cares what becomes of us."

ONE IN THE CAMP.

BUS DRIVERS' DISPUTE

To the Editor—In reference to the letter in The Colonist on November 28, written by P. S. (Dick) Dyer and D. L. Huchin, we wish to contradict statements made by them. One is that the manager, H. L. Sangster, met all our demands without any frills as they mentioned. We also wish to contradict the statement made by the above drivers there would be no discrimination against any of the drivers for their action during the dispute. This is very wrong, as the manager told us he would agree to everything we wanted, but on account of this dispute, he said he would get rid of us all, anyway within a week or two, and furthermore he said he would not take us all back under any circumstances.

Were it not for the efforts of the undersigned drivers, who are fighting for what is right, the others would not have got their wages as they have done. Yet, as soon as they got them they fall back on us and try to give the public the impression we were all wrong, while they know that all of us have waited for two weeks for our money, and then, at most times, only received portion of it, and this has been going on for at least a year.

We wish to call your attention to our floats, or change and ticket money loaned to us by the company, which amounted to $21.25 for most of us, which we were to return as the float of $4.25 per pay, which made it pretty hard for us on top of not receiving our pay up to date.

We have heard that some people have got the impression that we went out on strike, but that is not so. We did not go out on strike. The manager, H. L. Sangster, told us to take his proposition or leave it, and to get out, as he could replace us with men at $60 per month, so any one who thinks we still went out on strike, please get this out of your mind.

MARKET CONTROL

To the Editor—A friend in the fruit business has sent me from country a copy of a bulletin dated November 18, issued by the British Columbia Department of Agriculture to the Court House at Vernon, B.C. In this, the leading paragraphs are devoted to direct propaganda in favor of complete distribution and market control by the growers.

After hours of debate and lobbying, this matter as far as government policy is concerned, was settled at the last session of the Provincial Legislature when market control was thrown out and definitely abandoned.

But in spite of that, now we find a government department openly issuing and circulating at the expense of the taxpayers, propaganda against the policy which the government of the country through its legislature has decided.

It would seem that some departments of the government continue to run wild under some ministers, and this case of one branch using government money to carry on propaganda against the policy of the government as a whole, is another indicator of the looseness of control which is chiefly responsible for the present British Columbia financial crisis.

CHINA AIDS FORWARD MANCHURIA PLAN

Dr. Sen, the Chinese representative, met again with the drafting committee of the Council this morning and continued discussion of Chinese proposed amendments to the commission of inquiry plan.

JAPANESE REPORT

Mukden, Manchuria, Nov. 30.—An official spokesman at the Japanese headquarters here today said the Chinese were making troops to south-western Manchuria between Chinchow and Tachuan at the same time that Japanese troops were now almost completely withdrawn from that recent danger area.

The Chinese, he said, apparently were advancing as the Japanese retired and taking over the areas as they were evacuated.

A Japanese official communiqué said airplane observers reported seven trains believed to contain Chinese troops as having proceeded to Tachuan from Chinchow in two hours yesterday. Other Japanese planes, the communiqué said, had observed 1,200 infantry, 1,000 cavalry and fifty pieces of artillery at various points near Tachuan.

SIGN OF PEACE

It was taken as a sign of approaching peace when officials of the Peiping-Mukden railway announced they hoped to resume through service to-morrow. This morning Japanese headquarters permitted a train to leave Mukden and move southward to survey and repair broken telephone and telegraph wires.

MORE TROOPS SENT

Mukden, Nov. 30.—Japanese reinforcements described the main body of a brigade, left here to-day for Tachuan, against which Gen. Mah Chan-shan was said to be advancing from Halluin.

Japanese sources here, in making this announcement, said the troops at Tachuan had been ordered to stand by to move at a moment's notice.

INFORMAL DISCUSSION

Peiping, China, Nov. 30.—Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, deposed Governor of Manchuria, issued a statement to-night denying he had reached an agreement with Japanese Charge d'Affaires Yano providing for a neutral zone along the Peiping-Mukden railroad.

"In view of the misrepresentation concerning the interview," Mr. Yano sought with me Saturday night, it is necessary definitely to clarify the situation," he said. "Mr. Yano informally asked my opinion regarding a proposed neutral zone along the Peiping-Mukden railroad. It is entirely contrary to fact to say there was any negotiation or any agreement signed or even any understanding arrived at."

An Associated Press dispatch yesterday from Mukden read as follows: The liquidation of Japan's military adventure in Manchuria proceeded rapidly to-day, 10,000 troops being tracked their advance on Chinchow.

The greater part of the expedition which started down the Peiping-Mukden railway Friday was withdrawn east of the Liao River. Another withdrawal was in progress at Tachuan, where only two battalions remained of the division which first captured the city.

Although disposition of the Japanese troops was not announced, it was believed they would be encamped for the winter as follows:

Two battalions at Tachuan, two battalions at Kirin and all others inside the South Manchuria Railway zone.

A Peiping dispatch yesterday said: Five hundred Chinese bandits, operating under cover of artillery, crossed the Liao River at night and occupied the town of Yingkow, said a telegram received at Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang's headquarters.

By James P. Howe, Associated Press Staff Correspondent

Tokio, Nov. 30.—The Japanese Foreign Office yesterday revoked its criticism of Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson for statements on the Manchurian situation which had been misinterpreted as his, and said the situation had been entirely clarified.

"Mr. Stimson's statement," he said, "did not make any such statement as I thought from press dispatches," said a spokesman for the Japanese Foreign Office, which on Saturday accused the U.S. Secretary of State of "losing his head" and "flying into ruminations."

"Therefore, I consider my impulsive expressions yesterday entirely uncalled for," the spokesman continued. "I desire to state that any part of my statement which was not proper is hereby revoked. The assurance given by Mr. Stimson to Ambassador DeBuchi clarifies the situation entirely to our satisfaction. The incident is closed."

The Secretary of State of the U.S. on Friday made public portions of an exchange of notes on the Manchurian situation between Japan and the United States, Japan had disclaimed any intention of attacking Chinchow, and in view of this Secretary Stimson said it was difficult for him to understand press reports the Japanese were advancing toward Chinchow. Other statements were misconstrued by Japanese as coming from him.]

Col. Stimson's categorical denial he had made the statements erroneously attributed to him and a cable of explanation from Ambassador DeBuchi at Washington were received with great satisfaction.

The American Embassy has received advice from the State Department in Washington that the interview purporting to have come from Secretary Stimson is utterly at variance with his attitude.

"The Secretary has never held or expressed in public or in private attitude such as that imputed to him by press reports, but on the contrary has used his influence to restrain any expression by the American press which, in his words, might be interpreted as a solution of the Manchurian controversy." He has publicly denied the words as quoted were his.

ers and all classes. This is 380 more than last year and the largest in ten years.

ADDRESSES EMPLOYEES

David Leeming, majority candidate, addressed employees of Lemon & Gossard Limited at noon to-day, discussing campaign issues. The paramount point of the election was finance, he declared, stressing the need of having the best business men available to the council.

Mr. Leeming emphatically denied that he had an intention of asking the council to make a larger grant to the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, nor had such an idea ever entered his mind. He pledged himself not to tax 100 per cent of improvements.

Mr. Leeming will speak over station CFTV from 7:45 to 8 o'clock this evening to discuss the publicity bureau.

MEETING FOR ANDROS

E. B. Andros, also in the majority field, announced this morning plans for an election rally on Tuesday, December 8 at the Amphion Hall, Marie North, soprano, and Dorothy Morton, pianist, have been engaged as entertainers for the gathering, he said.

The first general meeting for all candidates will be held by the Victoria West Brotherhood to-morrow night at Stanley Hall. A similar meeting at Foul Bay is scheduled for the following Wednesday.

Association will continue their campaign with a meeting at Girls' Central School this evening at 8 o'clock.

Winners of the awards in order are as follows: First, Herman Trele; second, Parquharson Brothers, Zeeland; third, C. H. Bacon, Kinsington; fourth, G. H. Barrett, Pika; fifth, G. Green, Laura, Sask.; sixth, Charles S. Holdway, Ship Lake, Sask.; eighth, W. K. Gibson, Ladner, B.C.; ninth, R. S. Kirkham, Saltcoats, Sask.; twelfth, Thomas Myers, Riches, Sask.; fourteenth, H. O. Heimbecker, Calgary, Alta.; fifteenth, H. P. Robbins, Shannavan, Sask.; sixteenth, F. P. Towell, Saltcoats, Sask.; eighteenth, A. E. Mongeon, Pincher Creek, Alta.; twentieth, Thomas Brown, Yarmouth, Alta.; twenty-second, John A. Allen, Zeeland, Sask.; twenty-third, Joseph Samways, Millerside, Sask.

WHITE WHEAT

In the white wheat class Roy C. Chambers of Fenwick, Ont., took second, W. Wager, Fenwick, Ont., and Douglas Hart of Woodstock, Ont., third.

In the sweet clover division, W. Knox of Turf, Ont., took first, the only Canadian to gain an award in this class. O. P. Anderberg of Bow River, Alta., was acclaimed as the winner for the champion alfalfa seed in the west and his near relation, A. K. Anderberg, second, in the small seed class.

HAY AWARDS

In Timothy Hay Herman Trele established a fast lead for first, taking his fourth first award for the best Timothy. In this division Canada again took a heavy lead, entrants from western Canada scoring heavily. The winners are: Trele, first; A. E. Mongeon, Pincher Creek, Alta., second; E. Thompson, Pathway, Sask., fourth; Charles Barrett, Barret Lake, B.C., fifth; Albert Robbins, Laura, Sask., sixth; Henry Wilhelm, Midway, Ont., seventh; Bert Lansell, Brampton, Ont., fourteenth.

Albert Robbins of Laura, Sask., took another first for the Dominion, however, when he was awarded the best sweet clover, being the only Canadian to win an award in that division.

The hard red spring wheat early returns showed the prairie provinces again sweeping all state competition before them. Herman Trele surprised doers by taking third, losing first place to C. H. Gilbert of Big River, Sask., who took first, and second, O. Smith of Wolf Creek, Alta., who took second. Of seventy-two awards given but four went to United States entrants.

IDENTIFIED BY MILEMAN

On the walk home the little party almost ran into a milk wagon and the driver dashed his harness, nearly two inches from the Mahatma's face. Then he spoke apologetically: "Oh, good morning Mr. Gandhi. It's rotten weather."

"Yes, quite British," was the reply.

DEATHS IN SASKATOON ARE INVESTIGATED

Constance Hayes, thirty-four, wife of Michael Hayes, traveling auditor for a local company.

The body of Mrs. Hayes, first sighted through the door by the widower a few minutes after 10 a.m., was slumped in a chair, the left arm hanging down and the head inclined to the left, in the front waiting room.

The body of Milo Savage was found lying as if in sleep on a couch in a small balcony room above the rear of the premises, where the optician had his living quarters.

Hayes, on sighting the body of his wife and realizing she was dead, immediately went to police headquarters and notified the desk sergeant. Chief of Police G. Donald went to the scene and, in the course of the search of the premises, discovery of the second body was made.

Hayes formerly was a member of the Saskatchewan Provincial Police. He saw his wife last Saturday afternoon, when he retired to bed with a bad headache, and did not miss his wife until morning.

Mr. Savage leaves a widow and two children, resident in Vancouver. Mrs. Hayes is survived by three young children.

An inquest was opened yesterday evening and adjourned sine die.

tuberculosis. The tragedy of his life, he maintains, is the cause of his losing position as the Burbank of the North.

His SYSTEM

He accounts for his success by the fact that he does not hand pick any of the samples but due to his large volume of yield is able to sift and strain each prize crop to take the best of it to the show where for exhibition.

Using this system, aided by a common knowledge of chemistry and physics is the secret of his success, he claims. "It is very simple," he said to-day.

Many of the first award winners in the other classes of the Grain and Hay Show are his students, among them notably P. U. Cluine, who lives but three miles west of him at Wembley, in the Alberta Peace River district. "It is my ambition," he said, "to show what a wonderful province we have and what can really be done with the ground and climate there."

His wheat seemed headed to take the first prize in the oats division, the judging of which was set for this afternoon, and thereby would take his first award.

The wheat king gained his first wheat crown in 1926, and came back in 1930 for his second win, which he repeated to-day.

Canadian Press

Chicago, Nov. 30.—Of the seventy-two prize winners in the hard red spring wheat exhibits at the International Grain Exhibition here, eighty-eight went to western Canada growers.

One of the biggest surprises of the grain exhibition, held here with the International Livestock Show, came with announcement on Saturday that Herman Trele, 1930 international wheat king from Wembley, Alta., had won only third place in this judging.

Mr. Trele, however, won another championship in durum wheat, which kept him in the running for 1931 championship honors, which he won to-day.

The Wembley grower won the flax exhibit and also placed first in Timothy seed showings. C. H. Gilbert of Big River, Sask., exhibited first prize of the hard red spring wheat.

C. P. Anderberg of Bow River, Alta., carried the championship to Canada, with D. J. Monroe of Elkton, Mich., winning the reserve title. Remi Lemarche of Casselman, Ont., exhibited first prize in clover seeds and Alf. Bie Robbins of Laura, Sask., took first in sweet clover.

In the intercollegiate championships, Iowa State College for the tenth time won the livestock judging crown, amassing a total of 4,542 points. The Ontario Agricultural College of Guelph placed sixth with 4,459 points.

FLAX PRIZES

The flax exhibit was practically monopolized by Canadians, only ten of twenty-seven awards being given to United States entrants.

WINTER FAIR ATTRACTS PEOPLE AT VANCOUVER

Vancouver, Nov. 30.—British Columbia's seventh annual Winter Fair, declared to be the best in numbers and quality in history, was opened informally this morning at Hastings Park here. The official ceremony was performed by Hon. A. Aikman, provincial Minister of Agriculture, at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

From a modest beginning, the fair, operated under the auspices of the Vancouver Exhibition Association, has grown till it fills an important part of the programme of those farmers preparing for the Christmas market.

"I ask the citizens of Vancouver to make it a point to see the National Apple Show," Walter Leek, president of the Exhibition Association, declared.

"No better apple show has ever been seen here, and the splendid work done by the growers in the Okanagan Valley in the setting up of the nineteen district exhibits is highly praiseworthy."

"The whole winter fair is worth seeing, but the apple show is easily the best thing in it. I trust the citizens will co-operate with the exhibition association in the campaign for bigger and better markets for British Columbia produce."

Afterwards he was master of some of the best steamer of the fleet.

When the Harvest Queen was launched, Capt. Troup was given command, and he remained with her until he finally brought her over Tumwater Rapids, one of the most exciting and dangerous trips ever made on the Columbia River. Several years later he piloted her over the Cascades, making the perilous trip in the presence of what is said to have been the largest crowd that ever witnessed a similar feat.

It was with the decline of steamboating on the Upper Columbia that Capt. Troup found a new field on the lakes of British Columbia.

CAME HERE IN 1873

His first visit to Victoria was in 1873 as a young man, but his business connection with British Columbia did not commence until ten years later.

In 1883 he came to Victoria in response to an invitation from Capt. John Irving to take charge of the steamer William Irving on the Fraser River.

He arrived on May 23, 1883, and proceeded to New Westminster, on the Fraser River, and took charge of the William Irving the next day. He piloted her up and down the Fraser for the rest of a very busy season until the autumn when he took charge of the Yosemite.

C.P.N. COMPANY

The Canadian Pacific Navigation Company was formed in 1883 by an amalgamation of the interests of the Hudson's Bay Company and the Irving interests. Capt. Troup remained with the C.P.N. Co. here and on the Shuswap Lake until 1886, and then went back to Portland to be superintendent of water lines for the Union Pacific Company.

He had charge of the entire fleet of vessels of the Union Pacific Company, several of which were operating to Victoria.

During the years he spent on the Fraser River he had formed a close acquaintance with the late J. A. Mara who was interested in transportation on the Shuswap, Kamloops and Kootenay Lakes.

In 1890, Mara, who took first, and second, O. Smith of Wolf Creek, Alta., who took second. Of seventy-two awards given but four went to United States entrants.

DOMINION LOAN BOOKS TO CLOSE THIS EVENING

Over-subscription of the $150,000,000 loan by the Dominion is now assured. Applications for the loan poured in with such volume Friday and Saturday that the government decided to close the books this evening.

Holding the lists open to-day met the convenience of persons who had been delaying purchases of bonds until the end of the month so they would not lose November's interest on their drawings from savings accounts. It also provided for those who had actually subscribed subject to payment December 1.

Widepread response of the public to the loan is received with great satisfaction in financial circles here. The campaign was originally set to extend over three weeks, November 23 to December 12, and with only one week elapsed, it was seen success was assured.

MEMBER'S STATEMENT

Mr. Rhodes's statement was as follows: "The management committee for the National Service Loan has advised the government the response to the loan has been so widespread and generous that an over-subscription is now assured. Under the terms of the official prospectus the amount of the loan to be issued under the loan is $150,000,000 and the subscription lists will therefore be closed the night of Monday, November 30, notwithstanding the fact that it was contemplated the books would remain open until December 12."

"The government has, however, been informed by the management committee that it is within the committee's knowledge that any Canadian subscribers have filed or purpose filing applications accompanied by cheques dated December 1, and in order to give all an equal opportunity to participate, the government has given in advance applications has been accepted if filed to-morrow, November 30."

BUILDER OF C.P.R. COAST SERVICE IS CALLED BY DEATH

Princess Kathleen and Princess Marguerite, passed on retirement with the knowledge that his work had been well done, and turned over the reins of office to Capt. Cyril D. Neutrotes.

It was believed that Capt. Troup would have many years ahead of him in which to enjoy the autumn of his life, but death intervened unexpectedly. Three weeks ago, he was confined to his home with bronchitis, and in the last few days he had been in a coma, but it was not thought that death was so near.

BOEN IN PORTLAND

Capt. Troup was born in Portland, Ore., in 1855, being seventy-six years of age. He was the eldest son of Capt. William H. Troup, pioneer steamboat man of the Columbia River.

Capt. Troup's career as a mariner began in 1871, when his first experience afloat was on a steamer which his grandfather owned and operated between Portland and Vancouver.

He was quite a boy then and was permitted by his grandfather to stand on a box and steer the boat. Before he was twenty years of age, Capt. Troup commanded the steamer Wasp on the Vancouver route and the time he was of age had filled every position aboard from deckhand to master.

After leaving the Vancouver trade he entered the service of the Oregon Steam Navigation Company on the Upper Columbia, first as purser,

City of Kingston, as well as the North Pacific and the Oregon E. Star.

With the gradual growth of Vancouver and the fact of its being a terminus of the railways on the Mainland, it gave it the advantage in the shipping trade, which gradually absorbed a large proportion of the shipping business of the Victoria merchants, and it was fortunate for the city of Victoria that at that particular time the Canadian Pacific Railway came to the rescue by buying up the stock of the shareholders of the Canadian Pacific Navigation Company.

The purchase of the property was made in the year 1900.

LOSS OF ISLANDER

After the unfortunate loss of the Islander in the summer of 1901 the company decided to build a new and better steamer for the service, particularly between Vancouver and Victoria.

It was recommended that a boat of at least eighteen knots speed should be built, and with this vessel it would be possible to extend the daily service to Seattle and divert a certain amount of the passenger traffic to the boat and through Victoria on to the Sound cities. The steamer was built on the Tyne and built here in 1902. At that time the passenger traffic was routed through Mission Junction to Seattle in through sleepers, and there was very little of it filtered through to Victoria. After the completion of the Princess Victoria and the establishment two years later of the through connection to Seattle, the company was able to divert a large proportion of the traffic by boat through Vancouver and eventually all of it through Victoria.

TOURIST RESORT

This had a most important effect on the development of Victoria as a tourist resort, and was brought about entirely by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's move in providing the proper facilities.

The Empress Hotel was built as a result of the growth in passenger traffic which had been brought about as a result of the representation of a very influential committee who waited on Sir Thomas Shaughnessy shortly after the Princess Victoria was established in the service.

The heavy tourist travel which developed to and through Victoria was a direct result of the company's advertising, and through its arrangements with American lines for an exchange of traffic east and westbound, and by linking up the mountain and Coast attractions to the west.

BIG INVESTMENT

When Capt. Troup was named to take charge for the Canadian Pacific Railway Company in Victoria in 1901 the investment was $350,000.

To-day the investment is over $8,000,000 in boats and $3,000,000 in buildings and wharves.

During the year 1929 when Capt. Troup retired, the Canadian Pacific disbursed in the cities of Victoria and Esquimalt, through ship repairing yards and other firms, about $200,000, this expenditure being in connection with repairs to the hulls and machinery, for docking, cleaning, painting and upkeep generally. In addition to this purchases were made to the extent of $75,000.

The payroll of the British Columbia Coast Steamship Service to men whose homes are in this city as taxpayers, amounted to $648,000 during 1929.

But for an incident the whole career of Capt. Troup, which undoubtedly had a favorable influence on the development of the B.C. coast of British Columbia might have been changed for it has been said of the influence of the Canadian Pacific on the coast that the trade of this Coast must be accepted as the vision and foresight of Capt. Troup.

Capt. Troup's father was an Englishman. His ambition for his son was in the direction of the United States Navy. When his son was fifteen years of age, he secured for him an appointment in the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland. It was the first and only failure in the career of Capt. Troup's career.

He failed to pass his first examination. A defective eye caused his "flap."

It caused his failure in the navy but it eventually resulted in bringing to the British Columbia the man who has played such a part in its development.

Although the jump in the story from fast boats was Capt. Troup's outstanding ambition. He realized that a good service could not be attained otherwise, but throughout his interesting career the same star has guided him.

It is most interesting to compare the service as it is to-day with that of twenty years ago. In the year 1900 the Canadian Pacific purchased the Canada of the Canadian Pacific Navigation Company, which represented an investment of about $350,000. By this purchase the company acquired a fleet of fourteen steamers. There were seven distinct services being performed by the old company, the stern wheeler R. P. Rithet was performing three trips per week between Victoria and New Westminster in the summer months, being replaced by the Princess Louise in the winter months, a side wheeler. The Charmer making one trip daily between Vancouver and Victoria, leaving Vancouver about 1 p.m., after arrival of the daily transcontinental train. A regular service was also being maintained on the coast by the steamer Princess Victoria, leaving Victoria about 1 p.m., after arrival of the daily transcontinental train. The twin screw steamer Islander and the double porter steamer service to Skagway, Alaska, under the old company, and continued in this service until the Islander was lost in August 1901 off Douglas Island. The steamer Hatfield was purchased by the company in 1901 and renamed the Princess May. This steamer remained in the Alaska service for many years until in 1916 she was transferred to the Vancouver, Prince Rupert, Anjo service, continuing until sold in 1919, and transferred to the Atlantic coast to enter the West India fruit trade.

The Amur, another steamer purchased from the Canadian Navigation Company, was at that time operating to British Columbia ports, including Rivers Inlet and the canneries on the Skeena and Nass Rivers, and to the Queen Charlotte Islands. This service was augmented during the summer months by the old Princess Louise, the Tees was in 1900 performing a regular service to the West Coast of Vancouver Island, going as far as Cape Scott and to the Danish Colony of Houlberg.

The service between New Westminster and Victoria continued for some years, but the growing importance of Vancouver, together with the construction of the steamer Princess Victoria, had the effect of gradually drawing the traffic and that service was abandoned about 1905. The lower Fraser service was seriously affected by the opening of the electric line to Steveston and the Great Northern

164 David Copperfield

"My other piece of advice, Copperfield," said Mr. Micawber, "you know. Annual income twenty pounds, annual expenditure nineteen nineteen six, result happiness. Annual income twenty pounds, annual expenditure twenty pounds ought and six, result misery. The blossom is blighted, the leaf is withered, the God of day goes down upon the dreary scene, and—in short you are for ever floored. As I am!"

Will the fruits of years of industry go in care-less spending—then DEPENDENCE?

Will thrift be a companion to industry during productive years—then INDEPENDENCE?

Success should be gauged by savings—not by income. Industry alone will not bring independence—Thrift must be Industry's partner. A Manufacturers Life policy is the sure road to INDEPENDENCE.

ARION CLUB TO SING THURSDAY

Varied Programme to Include Solos By Miss Avis Phillips

A varied and interesting programme has been prepared for the first concert of the fortieth season of this veteran male voice singing club, which will be held at the Royal Victoria Theatre on Thursday evening next.

The singing artists on this occasion is Miss Avis B. Phillips, who has achieved a great success in London and throughout Canada; where she has received the praise of prominent critics who describe her voice as being "brilliant and of true soprano quality, and rich with the velvety tone of youth." Miss Phillips is an accomplished singer who has decided gifts of self-expression which she uses equally well in the heavier operatic roles in which she has taken part, as well as in the more dainty songs which are included in her repertoire.

For her first public appearance in Victoria Miss Phillips is singing two groups on the programme, the first being an aria, "Divinites du Styx," from "Alceste" (Gluck); Ballad from "Pagliacci" (Leoncavallo); and for her second group, "Cradle Song," a new song which is rendered for the first time, being a composition by Jean Coulthard, the young Vancouver composer, who studied with J. Vaughan Williams in London; "Pastoral" (Carey); "Ships of Arcady" (Michael Head); "Benediction" (Stanford). In addition to these solos Miss Phillips will sing the incidental soprano solo to Hermann Mohr's, "To the Genius of Music," a stirring and brilliant cantata which has only had one previous rendition in Victoria some sixteen years ago.

DAINTY SONGS

The programme of male voice music includes a number of dainty little songs which will be sung accompanied, as well as several robust numbers such as "Hammond's 'Lechivir' and Bul-lard's 'Sword of Ferrars'.

The club has long enjoyed the patronage of a set number of associate members who have regularly renewed their subscription. There is still room for an enlargement of this associate roster. Applications for tickets should be addressed to F. M. Russell, Pemberton Building, telephone Empire 9118. From present indications of renewals which have already come in, it is anticipated that a large audience of enthusiastic followers will face the club on this, their one hundred and second regular performance since inauguration thirty-nine years ago.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

DON'T SCOLD WAKEFUL BABY— CHANGE HIS DIET

Why babies refuse to sleep, when by every count they should be eager to slumber, is a question many a mother has found herself unable to solve. The baby who is awake most of the day should be so eager for sleep that he can't keep his eyes open. But seemingly many of them can stay awake, though their parents find it hard to imitate their bright eyes and their desire to play. The baby who is uncomfortable at night, who wakes and cries and tosses about, presents a quite different problem, but it is plain that both the fretful and the sleepless babies need real attention to their diet. In addition, their daytime schedules may need some alterations.

FUSSES AT NIGHT

"I hope you can help me, as you have helped others," appeals Mrs. E. C. K. "My boy is ten months old and weighs twenty-two pounds. He eats well, everything except vegetables and cod liver oil. He seems well, stands alone, naps from 10 to 12 in the morning and one or two hours in the afternoon, but he is fussy all night long. I have to put him to sleep so many times.

"I have tried having him fed at bedtime, I have tried keeping him quiet. He sleeps outdoors in the day-time and has two windows open at night. He has light, loose, woolen blankets. He refuses to eat at 10 p.m."

ADJUST NAPPING

Apparently there is nothing much wrong here and yet the fussiness isn't natural. Of course it may be temporary. You did not say how long it has been going on; if less than a week, it may end suddenly when a tooth comes through or some minor disturbance ends.

It is possible that baby might profit by only one nap a day from 12 to 2 or 3, instead of in the morning. At the time the baby is one year old, the long afternoon nap or even the two naps are often dropped. Try the following sort of schedule for a week or two, noting whether it works any improvement in baby's behavior:

- 6 a.m.—Bottle; one-half teaspoonful of cod liver oil.
- 9 a.m.—Orange juice.
- 10 a.m.—Meal and bottle; one-half teaspoonful of cod liver oil.
- 10.30 to 1.30—Nap.
- 2 p.m.—Vegetable and bottle; one-half teaspoonful of cod liver oil.
- 4 to 6 p.m.—Meal and bottle; one-half teaspoonful of cod liver oil.

CHECK DIET LIST
Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and let me send you my leaflet on "Diet From Two to Twelve Months." "Reasons for Wakefulness." If baby refuses cod liver oil, give him vitaminol. One of the other is essential during the winter months. Ask your doctor for dosages of vitaminol; do not give amounts.

Mix his vegetables with his baked potato, if he enjoys this. Or try vegetable soup with sliced vegetables in it. Or you put sliced vegetables in a custard that is called "instead of custard." By comparing your present diet with the one in the leaflet, you may discover some other changes that will improve it. An adequate diet is absolutely imperative when we are trying to correct sleeping disturbances.

To-morrow: "Mothers Regard Vicious With Suspicious Eyes."

"Woodbine Willie" To Be Subject Of Brother's Address

"Woodbine Willie," the famous war chaplain, will be the subject of an address to be given by his younger brother, L. C. Stoddard Kennedy, in the Memorial Hall to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock. Geoffrey Ansell Stoddard Kennedy, M.A., M.C., chaplain to the King and chaplain to the forces, was known to the soldiers at the front during the Great War as "Woodbine Willie."

To quote from an editorial in The Yorkshire Evening Post, Leeds, his own home town: "Speak any soldier who came in contact with him, and you realize at once that he must have been an ordinary man to have left behind him such a vivid impression of a personality. His methods and his language were alike unconventional, but he got home to the heart of Tommy Atkins in a wonderful way. He took big views, he used plain language and he could enter into the minds of men."

AUNT HET

By ROBERT QUILLLEN

The first social event staged by the Langford Parent-Teacher Association was held in the Women's Institute Hall Thursday evening. Percy Molr, president, welcomed the guests and was master of ceremonies for the evening. Eleven tables of progressive card whist were played, the highest scores being Mrs. Fred Baylis 164, Mrs. R. Carlow 163, while Mrs. N. G. Johnston and H. O. Baynes obtained consolation prizes. Refreshments were served. The next meeting of the association will be held December 9 in the schoolhouse.

The final meeting of the members of St. Matthew's Guild for this year will take place December 2 at the home of Mrs. J. E. MacDonald, Langford Lake, at 2.30 o'clock.

ALL TWISTED OUT OF SHAPE WITH RHEUMATISM

T-R-C's cleared Rheumatism poisons from Moncton man's system

NO RETURN OF PAIN
There may be no such thing as miracles, but just try to convince Mr. Geo. H. Leaman of this. Nine or ten years ago, he had a terrible attack of Sciatic Rheumatism. Despite all kinds of treatment he suffered excruciating pain and became all twisted out of shape, so badly so that it was decided to try and straighten his poor arms and legs by a system of ropes, pulleys and weights.

"They never had to be used," he says. "Just a few days before, a relative in Toronto sent me a box of T-R-C's. From the first box I got relief. After using them for a few weeks, I found the pain had left me. My arms and legs gradually straightened out. Anyone on seeing me now would not believe I had been so terribly laid up with Rheumatism."

Deep-rooted, stubborn cases of Rheumatism require patient and correct use of T-R-C's for a reasonable length of time; but you are sure of relief if you persist with T-R-C's. Repeatedly they have given safe, speedy relief from Acute Rheumatic suffering; also from Sciatica, (stabbing pain in hip and thigh), Neuritis, Neuralgia and Lumbago (Lame Back). No harmful or habit-forming drugs.

T-R-C's do this—Enter the blood stream and help your body throw off the misery-causing poisons which have accumulated in your blood. When these go, health and happiness return. T-R-C's are 30c and $1 per box at your dealer's.

You owe it to yourself to try—

TRADE MARK

Chemainus, Nov. 30.—The monthly meeting of the Tillamook Club was held Thursday evening in the Picture House, when a special invitation was issued to the children of Chemainus. The Tillamook orchestra gave musical selections, followed by community singing and individual contributions.

AROUND THE TOWN

With Missess Pepys

Saturday, Nov. 26.—Up at dawn and for a break walk before breakfast should have enjoyed it better had Jack been with me. This crisp frosty weather is, in truth, exhilarating.

In a flutter of excitement at thought of visiting our new house to-day, Samuel, ever the most secretive of men, will tell me nothing about it but will meet me at the Mitchell at one and drive out after lunch.

Decide to shop alone, much as I hate it, to save time. Last time Missess Castlemaine did have so much to buy, scarce time was there for my shopping.

Samuel takes me to the Murphy Electric Co. in that I wish him to buy a combined electric clock and lamp did see there for but $8.50, also a crystalline parchment bed lamp and new style boudoir lamp and a shadow lamp and but he becomes speechless in trying to say he doesn't want them all to-day! Should have at least a radio lamp, made like an ancient stage coach such as Robin Hood's bold band might have robbed.

Samuel will go no further, tho' I throw he'd enjoy looking over alluring dainty silken trifles at Mae Meligen's. Of course, he is a man of taste and how much they appeal to feminine fancy. Did but lately see most gayly bewitching, fine rayon pyjamas in her window for so small a sum—alike nighties, blouses, dance gowns, webby stockings and all the intimate things we love to tuck into a week-end bag. From Mae Meligen's they're sure to please the most particular.

McMartine—next door. A friend in Bessie's so admired the brief case McMartine made for Samuel that he did give it him as parting gift and ever since bemoaned its loss. Would have another made for him and gold least initials stamped thereon. School bags, brief or any other special cases, in stock or to order, of finest leather, (and 'tis a satisfaction to buy where they really know leather) at unbeatable prices. 'Tis high time to order, though.

Third day of the Belfast Linen Co.'s sale. Hasten there—shall see Peggy and six fine Irish linen glass cloths with colored teapots design, 38c each and a pair of fine linen hand embroidered pillow-slips, $2.49. Do believe she's secretly planning her hope chest and spite her tiff with Dick. For him kerchiefs—they show me softest linen, with hand embroidered initial and hand hemstitched, 38c—buy 8 in box for $1.00—have always paid far more.

Did want to visit Foster's but believe 'tis best to leave Samuel, too.

So to the Old Peking where do always love to while away an hour. Every boat from China brings in new treasures and never before so reasonable. Earrings—do truly covet these wee turquoise matrix balls set in silver filigree and this quaintly fashioned pair of malachite—a deep cornelian-like stone surrounded by seed pearls—I must have it, for 'tis such a wee sum. They're here! they're here!—the Chinese Christmas cards.

Meet Samuel at the Mitchell, 517 Fort Street, stilled at the idea of trying this new lunch room. 'Tis a dainty, cheerful place in its pastel shades. Lamb chops and sprouts—a tempting special—little loin chops, cooked to a turn. They serve different specials each day. Samuel, ever over-fascinated about his meals, is lavish in his praise. With good reason methinks—the coffee and the delectable pumpkin pie—it did melt in my mouth.

Samuel with me to Knight's Studio. Dressed to look at proofs but 'tis a bit of a bother. He is a man of taste and not like some photos—showing, it did seem, only my most awkward poses. Samuel delighted with proofs—one he said had 'bro't out just the twisted little smile he likes. 'Tis a thrilling find here a portrait of our friend, Mr. Redstone, visiting last summer from London. 'Tis not surprising he tho't it worth while to sit to Mr. Knight.

In all things am I most curious and Samuel had kept even the location of our new house a secret.

Surprised when he doth call for Mister Olsen, a friend—on the way they explain the secret. He did commission him to build a house and not by luck, we have our choice of three! So to Oak Bay, where a charming semi-bungalow did please me mightily, with its soft-toned California stucco and distinctive architecture. The massive rich-wooded mahogany door opens into a den or hall and promptly I fall in love with the living-room, flooded with sunlight. Did but lately see most gayly bewitching, fine rayon pyjamas in her window for so small a sum—alike nighties, blouses, dance gowns, webby stockings and all the intimate things we love to tuck into a week-end bag. From Mae Meligen's they're sure to please the most particular.

SOCIAL, PERSONAL AND HOME INTERESTS

LOST ALL HER "PEP"

Customs worker in one of the Border Cities tells of great benefit from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills (tonic). Says they were her "best friend".

"I became quite myself again."
(Sgd.) Beatrice M. Gehan.

"I was employed in a Customs Office in one of our border cities," writes Mrs. Beatrice M. Gehan, now resident at Sterling, Ontario, "and after the first few months' business strain I began to feel as though I were losing all my 'pep' and energy, and my work seemed a drudgery to me. A girl friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and see if I wouldn't soon feel better.

"Before I finished my first box I was already feeling better, and the color was coming into my cheeks. By the time I had taken my third box I had become quite myself again, but still I always kept a box on hand. They were my best friend." That is just one letter from hundreds received from all parts of Canada. If you could read all the letters received you would certainly be convinced.

Often it seems that the benefit resulting from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is almost uncanny. Actually it is all quite natural. The iron and other elements in the Pills increase the amount of haemoglobin (life-giving element) in the blood, enabling the blood to carry more oxygen to the tissues. This, in turn, sharpens the appetite and produces a feeling of well-being.

Take advantage of this safe and proven means to better health. Go to a drug store and get a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. 50 cents a package. Just see if they don't help you wonderfully.

Gems of Peril

CHAPTER XXXIV

Mary dropped the Countess's arm, on which the bracelet glittered, and went wonderingly to the door. Where would it be safe? There was a small cabinet near Mr. Jupiter's cabin on the "Olympic," and it had able guardians. She resolved to put it there for safekeeping at the earliest possible moment. Eddie's I.O.U., too, that small piece of paper had its importance, also.

She couldn't go out to the yacht now—it lacked less than an hour of dinner time. At seven the Jupiter party was to meet in the lobby of the roof dining-room. The Jupiter had promised to be there, too. Although she dreaded the encounter, it was just what she had hoped for—an opportunity to disarm the man's suspicions. If he had any (apparently his colossal conceit did not permit him to fear detection).

And since she had come off so well last night she had thought of an even more dangerous experiment which she meant to try without Mr. Jupiter's knowledge, for she was sure he would never consent. She would wear the rubies to-night! By dangling them under the very nose of The Fly she was sure he would never resist until he had got hold of them. By sharpening his appetite she might succeed in hurrying him into an attempt to make off with them. And, if Bates and others would help her, lead him straight into a trap.

She went to her dressing-table and put the bracelet in her handbag, where the I.O.U. already was hidden. With the bag tucked under her arm she went into the hall.

Louise, of course, was relying on her to return the bracelet when Bruce's eyes were turned the other way. She must have been surprised at Mary's unexpected support of her lie, but she evidently considered it just the quirk of one woman helping another pull her chains out of the fire. Mary disliked Bruce enough to do it for the fun of annoying him, she probably reasoned. She would go on thinking so until she found out that Mary did not mean to give the bracelet back. Then, look out!

Louise would have to account to De Loma sooner or later for its loss. If she were angry enough to risk her life to get it back for her secretly, unquestionably he would accept a greivous reason for its being withheld and then—she shivered as she realized the lengths to which he might go to recover it.

Mary knew she must act quickly if she hoped to get the bracelet back to her reach. She resolved to go downstairs at once and put the two objects in the hotel safe until she could take them out to the yacht.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily on the Slide

By HOWARD E. GARIS

"Whee!" chattered Johnnie Bushy-tail. "Wham!" shouted Billie, his brother. The two squirrel boys were out bright and early one morning racing to and fro in front of the tree in the hollow trunk of which their father and mother had built a cozy, warm nest for the winter. Often, in summer, the squirrels lived in a tree nest, like the birds. But in winter a hole in a hollow tree was much warmer.

"Isn't this fine weather?" chattered Billie. "So nice and cold!" cried his brother. "I'm sure it will freeze good hard ice now."

"Sure," agreed Billie. "Come on, get a pail and we'll carry some water over to the hill before we have to go to school!" suggested Johnnie.

"Sure!" cried Billie again. "Whee!" "Wham!" yelled Johnnie, and so they scampered away to find a pail and then they ran to the spring of water not far from their tree house.

"See! What did I tell you?" yelled Billie as he pointed to the spring. "It's frozen over with ice."

"Then how are we going to get any water?" asked Johnnie. "We'll break the ice," his brother told him. "Get a stone!"

Throwing stone after stone on the ice soon broke the crystal covering of the spring and the squirrel boys could dip the pail in and scoop up some water. They were carrying the dripping pail of water between them when along hopped Uncle Wiggily, coming out of his hollow-stump bungalow with his pink, twinkling nose.

"Ah, ha! Good boys, my little squirrels!" called the rabbit gentleman. "I suppose you are taking a pail of early morning water to pour on the hill back of our tree house."

"Why are you doing that?" asked Mr. Longears. "Is the hill so thirsty that you must carry water to it?"

"Oh, no," chattered Billie. "Though if we knew of some poor old lady bug who was thirsty we could carry water to her."

"But we are taking the water to the hill to make a slippery slide," explained Johnnie. "We are going to pour the water on the hill so it will run down and freeze into ice as this is a cold day. And when we come home from school we'll have a slippery slide of ice on the hill."

"That's fine," said Uncle Wiggily. "As I have nothing to do this morning, I'll watch you make the slide. And, as that pail of water is heavy, I'll help you carry it."

No sooner said than done, and soon the water was trickling down the hill, freezing as it trickled. The squirrel boys watched it for a while and then, as the bell rang in the Hollow-stump School, Billie cried to his brother:

"Come on!" Run or we'll be late.

Down he went.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

At this season of the year, the stand-by often known as the "vegetables with squash, colons cabbage, share honors with the culent summer vegetables salvaged cans. There are so many ways in which we can gain variety and add deliciousness to these vegetables, the few suggestions may be found in Remember that there is a best of cooking these common vegetables. They must be well cooked, well seasoned and hot in order to be enjoyed and in many instances you must downright extravagant in the use of butter.

Winter squash is good until a Christmas dinner, properly cooked, served, few vegetables can surpass rich appeal. Try cutting a fine Hubbard squash in halves and baking it under. Scoop out and put three spoon of butter and cream if you like. Beat until light, using a spoon or electric beater if you a smoother. Season with salt, pepper, and a bit of sugar butter and make very hot.

Turnips will be found more pleasing if a dry, meaty potato is made with them. Cook potatoes and turn separately and drain both thoroughly. Then add one or two potatoes, depending on the amount of turnip and mash thoroughly. Season with salt, pepper, a bit of sugar butter and make very hot.

Squash croquettes are worth a place on any festive dinner menu.

Two cups cooked and mashed squash, one-quarter cup finely chopped meat, two tablespoons melted butter, one egg, two tablespoons cream, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth spoon pepper.

English walnuts, pecans and hickory nut meats are the best nut use. Combine squash, melted butter and salt and pepper and nuts. Add well beaten cream. Shape small balls or cylinders and roll fine dried bread crumbs. Dip in slightly beaten with one tablespoon water and roll again in crumbs. Fry in frying basket and fry in deep hot enough to brown an inch of bread from the soft part of the in forty seconds. If a fat thermometer is used it should register degrees Fahrenheit. Fry a golden brown, drain on crumpled paper serve.

Carrots and cheese make a luncheon dish.

Three cups cooked and mashed carrots, three tablespoons melted butter, one-half teaspoon salt, one cup bread crumbs, two tablespoons mince, four tablespoons grated cheese. Combine carrots, butter, salt, bread crumbs and cheese. Place in a buttered casserole and cover with grease. Bake fifteen minutes in moderate oven and until the cheese melts and becomes a golden brown top.

The total registration of passenger automobiles in Canada in 1930 was 947,494, being the equivalent of one car for every 9.5 persons.

WHY MOTHERS GET GRAY

Dorothy Dix

The Nagger May Be the Final Expression of Selfish Tyranny and a Heavy Cross to Bear, but Often She Nags Her Family Into Good Health and Right Living, Says Dorothy Dix

PHYSICIAN has come to the defence of the nagging wife and mother who, he maintains, is good for a family, even if she is a bitter pill to swallow. Says that those children have the best health who have nagging mothers are forever after them with: "Don't get your feet wet." "Don't sit on the ground." "Wear a heavy coat." "Eat your spinach." "Chew your food properly." and so on, and on. Also says that it is the men who nag their wives who get them into little coughs, or about their pressure, or about drinking much coffee, or about not taking enough exercise, or about their teeth. Finally get nagged into doctors' dentists' offices in time to save them from premature graves.

Possibly a man who is married to a nagging woman does live longer than one who is not. At any rate, it seems longer, but who wants life at such a price? For nothing else so reconciles one to death as the thought that one's wife will, at least, shut out the voice that has ceaselessly told one where to get off and where to get on.

That so few men slay their nagging wives, whose tongues are gadflies that sting and torture them, is one of the finest proofs we have of the moral courage and patience and long-suffering endurance of human nature.

But the doctor is right in asserting that the nagger frequently does accomplish good by her nagging, and however painful the process, she does lead her family along the straight and narrow way. Indeed, she is the only one who seems fitted to cope with certain situations.

Drink, for instance. Probably no man with a natural-born thirst ever led the temperance pledge who was not nagged into doing so. His love of beer was not so strong as his fear of what his wife would say, and infinitum, he smelled beer on his breath. And philandering. Many a man with a good eye acquires a permanent stigmatism where pretty women are concerned rather than listen to his wife's endless monologue about flirtatious hands.

Also, it is a well-established fact that a nagging wife is the only known agency that will galvanize a lazy man into action. Such a line may find him unpleasant, but it is not so unpleasant as being girded at continually for his lack of energy. Loafing ceases to be alluring when it has to be done in the presence of criticisms and strictures that rasp one's nerves like cross-cut saw.

One millionaire of my acquaintance makes no bones of declaring that his nagging wife has made him into a success. He is a placid, easy-going chap who was satisfied with a job that made him a comfortable living, but his wife was mercenary and ambitious. She wanted more money and still more money, and so nagged him at why he was not a go-getter like Mr. Croesus, that just to get away from ceaseless reproaches he spent all of the time he could at work and that he did his business into a great success. And doubtless many another man is similarly hounded into fame and fortune by his wife.

It is curious to think that nagging is one of the great forces that motivate the world. Long ago the Bible attested its power in the parable of the unjust judge whom a woman nagged into giving the decision she wanted. And the same force still works. We are all cowards and turn backs before it. It breaks down our morals more quickly and more completely than any other living thing. There is nothing we will not do to escape it or to stop it.

The nagger can make us give up our friends. She can separate us from mother who bore us and the sisters and brothers who are part of our very life. She can make us eat what she wants us to eat and do without the dishes we like. She can make us wear the clothes that she prefers and that we loathe, can make us forsake our religion and change our politics. She can force tastes, habits and opinions upon us because most of us are for peace at any price and it is easier to give in and surrender than it is to carry on a personal fight.

So if mother says put on your rubbers and eat breakfast, we meekly put on our rubbers and swallow down the cereal we loathe rather than have an argument about it, because well know she would keep on saying put on your rubbers and eat breakfast food for a million times until she wore you down so you would like it.

And if wife tells John that he must wear a certain type of collar and a red tie, and that strong coffee is bad for his nerves, John meekly lets her put kind of collar and necktie she likes on his neck and drinks dishwater use it saves a family row. And wife would keep at him to their golden day until he did it, for the nagger has staying powers not possessed by many mortals.

Such being the case, the nagger, being all-powerful, it is a comfort to know that she is not all to the bad, as we had previously supposed, but that she serves a benevolent purpose in nature, just as snakes and mice and ants and other so-called pests do.

Most of us have been under the impression that the nagger was the final expression of self-conceit, selfishness and petty tyranny. Perhaps we shall be to look upon her, or him (for naggers are not all of the female sex and the nagger is the more virulent of the species), with a kinder eye when we realize that the nagger often does nag us for our own good.

Seven Ancient Wonders

BABYLON'S HANGING GARDENS
The seven wonders of the ancient world are usually given as: 1. The Hanging Gardens of Babylon; 2. The Colossus of Rhodes; 3. The Lighthouse of Alexandria; 4. The Tomb of Mausolus; 5. Statue of Zeus at Olympia; 6. Temple of Artemis at Ephesus; 7. The Colossus of Rhodes. I plan to tell about all of these this week to describe the modern "seven wonders" next week.

Sketch showing probable appearance of "Hanging Gardens" near top.

The Hanging Garden of Babylon flourished 2,500 years ago. Long ago they fell into ruins, but the ruins have been studied during recent years, and we have a fairly good idea how they must have looked. The "Hanging Gardens" were garden terraces along a main hill. A better name for them would be "Terrace Gardens." The Babylonians lived in a country that had few hills. Legend tells us that King Nebuchadnezzar wanted to please his queen, a woman who had spent her girlhood in a country filled with hills and valleys. She was not satisfied with the flat land around Babylon.

"I will build a mountain for my queen," said the king, who had high ideas about his power. "What he meant was that he would order it done. Men were set to work moving blocks of stone from far places to the spot chosen for the king's 'mountain.' At length rose a hill, formed of stone and earth. The general shape was like that of a pyramid. The height was about 350 feet.

At the top was a palace where the king and queen spent much of their time.

Trees, shrubs and flowers of many kinds were planted on the terraces, and the fame of the beautiful gardens spread far and wide. A wall was built around the base of the hill. This was intended to prevent the public from peering too closely into the "royal retreat."

Now You Can Lose Fat—a Pound a Day on a Full Stomach

Just Do These Two Simple Things—Inches of Fat Melt Away

Here is a quick and easy way to take off a pound a day—four to seven pounds every week!—with never a hungry moment. A way any doctor will tell you is safe and sure.

This is what you do: Take a teaspoonful ordinary Jad Salts in glass of water half hour before breakfast every morning. This reduces moisture-weight instantly. Also cleanses your system of the waste matter and excess toxins that most fat people have, and banishes puffiness and bloating.

Then do this about eating. FILL YOUR STOMACH—eat your fill—of lean meats, vegetables like spinach, cauliflower, cabbage, tomatoes, etc., and lots of salads. Eat a lot. Eat all you can hold. Don't go hungry a minute. Cut down on butter, sweets and desserts, bread. Eat any fruit for dessert.

That's all you do. Fat seems to melt away. The coarse lines of overweight give way to the refined ones of slenderness. You lose as much as a pound a day. You feel better than for years. For in this treatment you achieve two important results. The Jad Salts clear your system of toxins. "The diet takes off fat with food that turns to energy instead of weight."

If you're tired of being embarrassed by fat, try this way. You'll be glad that you did.

*Note particularly—the salts are urged purely as a poison-banishing agent—not as a reducing. The change in food does the work. You can get Jad Salts at any drug store.

PATROL LEADERS ATTEND MEETING

Pacific Northwest Conference in Vancouver Was Representative Gathering

Twenty Victoria Leaders Attended; Splendid Programme Given

Hundreds of patrol leaders in the Scout and Cub movement are attending the twelfth annual Pacific Northwest Patrol Leaders' Conference in Vancouver. Twenty Victoria leaders made the trip last week-end, including ten from the Third Victoria Troop, five from St. Mary's and the rest from St. Michael's and St. Paul's. In addition sixty from Seattle, Everett, Tacoma and other United States points passed through the city on Friday and left on the afternoon boat for the Terminal City. There were delegations from Port Alberni, Nanaimo and Courtenay, from Prince Rupert, Kamloops and other interior centres, and of course, a large group from Vancouver patrols.

Executive Commissioner W. Solway, of Vancouver, was in charge of the conference. The proceedings opened on Friday evening with a banquet in the Hotel Vancouver, at which an address of welcome was delivered by King's Scout Thornton Robertson and a reply made by Star Scout Jack Boyd, Seattle. Short talks were given by E. Palmer, United States Council-General; J. H. Griffith, provincial president, and A. McKelvie, Vancouver district president. A sing-song was conducted by Norman Newman and Frank Hughes.

PAPERS READ
Saturday's activities opened with a roll call and Father Fallon's invocation in St. Augustine's Hall. After remarks by Commissioner Solway, Rover Scout Joe Long, Seattle, delivered a paper on the part of the patrol leaders in the life of the troop, and Scout Tom Eckford, North Vancouver, a paper on the part of the patrol leader in making up and applying the scout programme.

Other papers submitted during the day included King's Scout Joe Gilbertson's on "How to Run a Court of Honor," Scout Bill Daily on "What to Do With the Bladder," and Scout Douglas Ford's on "Should We Have Patrol Leader Training Courses, and of What Should the Training Consist."

VISIT TECHNICAL SCHOOL
On Saturday night members of the conference visited the Technical High School, where demonstrations and games were to be held.

Yesterday morning, prior to breaking up, the leaders attended church services at St. Augustine's Church and the Canadian Memorial Church.

SAANICH CLUB TO HEAR G. PILCHER
Lecture on "British Achievements in India" to Be Given on Wednesday

An official reception will be accorded George Pilcher, secretary of the Royal Empire Society, London, on the occasion of his presentation of an illustrated address on "British Achievements in India," at a social supper at the North Saanich Service Club rooms, School Cross Road, on Wednesday evening, commencing at 8.15 o'clock.

One hundred officers, noncommissioned officers and men and the regimental pipe band of the Second Battalion Sixteenth Canadian Scottish under command of Major W. Barty, will be guests of the club on this occasion and assist in according Mr. Pilcher fitting welcome.

The concert programme will be provided by the following Highlanders: Major A. D. MacDonald, R.A.; Capt. Macgregor Macintosh, P.F.C.L.I.; Capt. J. Adam, Canadian Scottish; Serg. G. Matheson, Cecil Beaton and Bob Webb.

As guest in Canada of the National Council of Education, Mr. Pilcher is the only person who has been a member of both the British and India Imperial parliaments. The lecture, illustrated by beautiful slides, will interpret the administration, economic and cultural progress to which, under British inspiration and guidance, India owes much of its advancement. The address will, it is hoped, help Canadian citizens in their impartial study of the Indian problem. An informal dance will conclude the evening.

BLACK PARROT NEW FIRM NAME

Victoria's Newest Fountain Lunch to Open on Yates St.

On December 2, The Black Parrot will settle in Victoria. This Black Parrot is not the exotic tropical bird that perhaps its name implies, but Victoria's newest fountain lunch. It takes up its residence in Art Minnie's new drug store, 730 Yates Street, in the Beverly Hotel Building, and in these new and modern surroundings will surely attract a large patronage. Fountain lunches have become very popular through their ability to serve the public quickly with light lunches and fountain specials. The Black Parrot is no exception, and will feature coffee and sandwiches with other surprises in the food line, which will greatly appeal to Victorians.

The Black Parrot is tastefully decorated in keeping with its name, and due to its convenient location in regard to the theatres and dances will prove a popular haven in the evening, as well as in the morning and afternoon.

Freddie Hunter and Bob Thomson, partners in this new enterprise, are well known to many in Victoria, and both boys are ready to welcome their many friends and hope to make many new ones.

The decorations were executed by Reg. Bullock.

CONSERVATIVES HURL CHARGES DURING DEBATE

Convention Advocates Lose Motion in Heated Discussion at Nanaimo

Premier Tolmie Will Meet Committee to Talk Over Internal Ailments

By Times Special Correspondent

Nanaimo, Nov. 30.—Frank admission from all side of troubles and unrest in the Conservative party marked the unsuccessful verbal battle for a convention of the party at the annual meeting of the British Columbia Conservative Association here Saturday afternoon, but after a number of bitter personal conflicts the motion for a convention failed.

During the heated discussion and warm exchanges no mention was made of the specific differences. They were referred to in general terms as "unrest in the party," "internal dissension" and "trouble in the party." The outcome of the debate was a promise of Premier Tolmie that he would meet and take advice from any committee of the association.

DICK IS STORM CENTRE

Vancouver members led the demand for the convention. William Dick, M.P.P., was accused of trying to sell out the party to the Liberals when he clashed with Hon. J. W. Jones, Minister of Finance. Mr. Dick also clashed with Hon. W. C. Shelly, reminding the former Minister of Finance he had challenged him to resign.

"Why should we be afraid of a convention after a lapse of five years?" Col. Nelson Spencer, M.P.P., of Vancouver, demanded. "If a demand for a convention has been made by a third of the province through the Vancouver association, why should not it be considered?"

A convention would clear the air; it would acquaint people with what is going on, and make sure of a bigger majority than ever for the government at the next election, Col. Spencer said.

Mr. Shelly denied the idea that "as Vancouver goes so goes the country." He thought Vancouver in the past had often just been a "good guesser." A convention now would be "unfair and cowardly." But he favored a convention before the next election.

"I have been instructed like the other delegates, but I'm not taking any such instructions where it is a vote of lack of confidence in the government," he said.

This suggestion was angrily denied in a chorus of shouts, but Mr. Shelly asserted he could point to men who regarded the convention plan in that light.

Some delegates, led by Jack Loutet, M.P.P., of North Vancouver, sought to avoid discussion of the convention by filing resolutions on the subject, but G. A. Walkem, M.P.P., of Vancouver, said this would be folly. It would make the public think that the party was afraid to meet its difficulties.

The present unrest in the party, Mr. Walkem asserted, has little to do with unemployment, which occupied most of the association's meeting. The trouble went back to the days following the last election.

"It is due," he said, "to the fact that we didn't dismiss men from certain positions and fill them with men loyal to us. Most of the staff of deputy ministers was left in office."

SEEK FINANCIAL INFORMATION

Mr. Dick tried in vain to get some information on provincial finances.

When he asked what unemployment had cost so far Mr. Jones said this question was most unfair as the government had not yet received all the vouchers involved. "How much more does the government owe than it did in 1928?" Mr. Dick demanded.

"That's a Liberal question," C. F. Davis, M.P.P., of Cowichan-Newcastle interjected.

"It's a serious question for the taxpayers," Mr. Dick retorted.

"It's a very unfair question," Mr. Jones objected. "I'm surprised that any member of the Legislature should ask it at present. These questions are answered in the House. Mr. Pattullo will ask them on the first day. I'll say, though, that our debt is being well looked after."

Mr. Dick insisted that he wanted the information so as to be able to answer Liberal speakers. "I speak on the average twice a week," he said.

"Too much," several delegates shouted.

"If you think so, come over and try," Mr. Dick replied.

TRYING TO SELL PARTY

"I think you're trying to sell out the party to the Liberals," some one cried amid confusion and shouting. Mr. Dick then dropped his questions.

OFFICERS

Officers of the association were unanimously re-elected in a body. The officers are: Lindsey Grease, K.C., of Victoria, president; Colonel W. W. Foster, D.S.O., Vancouver, first vice-president; Mrs. J. Wagget, Kamloops, second vice-president; John Bennett, sixth vice-president; Frank Hassard, Enderby, fourth vice-president; J. Kirkpatrick, Penticton, fifth vice-president; Mrs. J. D. Bowden, Squamish, sixth vice-president; W. O. Wallace, Saanich, secretary; William Dick, M.P.P., Vancouver, treasurer.

Navy Whip Scots To Lead Senior Rugby

Smashing Attacks Give Sailors Win; Gunners Take Game

Bluejackets Crash Through Highlanders' Defence to Score 13-to-3 Victory in Saturday English Code Feature; McDonald, Porteous and Barker Account for Points; Fifth Regiment Seniors Smash Out 10-to-5 Decision Over Wanderers; University School and Wanderers Intermediate Winners

Canadian Scottish, city senior champions, danced to the tune of "Those Navy Blues" at the Royal Athletic Park on Saturday as they took their first defeat of the season from the sailors in the day's rugby feature. The final score, 13 to 3, was not indicative of the closeness of the game. Both teams battled from start to finish, with the Highlanders having every bit as much of the game as their opponents.

PRESIDENT'S TEAM WINNER AT COLWOOD

Defeats Captains Side By 17½ to 13½ in Annual Match; Dinner Is Held

In the annual match played at the Colwood Golf Club yesterday, the team headed by the president defeated the captain's representatives by a score of 17½ to 13½. A number of fine matches were witnessed during the course of the competition.

In the three feature matches, Harold Linham defeated Bob Morrison, city and Uplands Club champion, Norman Wallace defeated Sandy Marling and Jack Matson and Bill Newcombe divided the points.

Following the match the losers entertained the winners at a dinner in the clubhouse, where a programme of music, songs and speeches rounded out the evening.

The results follow, with the president's team first named:

George Strath 6, A. D. Strath 1, John Davidson 6, W. Lambert 1, R. Hewlett 1, E. Perry 6, A. W. Miller 1, J. H. Beatty 6, Dr. George Hall 6, E. N. Hurst 1, Dr. Keyes 6, Dr. F. M. Bryant 1, C. And as the tars marched to the head of the league the Fifth Regiment moved up into a tie with the Scots in second berth by handing the Oak Bay Wanderers a 10 to 5 beating at Oak Bay Park.

In the intermediate division, Wanderers scored a 5 to 0 victory over the Canadian Scottish at the Canteen Grounds, while the University School ran through the Fifth Regiment 34 to 0 at Mount Toimie. The Brentwood J.B.A.A. fixture was postponed on account of hard grounds.

Smashing powerful runs and backs by the Navy told the story of the tars' win over the Scottish. The Highlanders repeatedly worked into the blue-jackets' ground but their backfield failed to show its customary smartness and they were unable to make many promising plays count.

Play swung from end to end at the opening with both teams gaining most of their yardage on kicks. Twice in the first fifteen minutes Campbell Forbes tried for place kick goals but missed.

McDonald crashed through the line-out after the Highlanders had bucked back to centrefield. He passed to McDonald, who gained ground before throwing to Porteous, who was brought down on the troops' three-yard line. Stagg whipped the ball back to McDonald from a loose scrum and McDonald crashed through the troops' defence for the first try. Barker converted.

The Scottish again went on the attack, going down on kick and run plays and backing rushes. They failed to get through. The forwards broke away on a threatening dribble but overran the ball.

Fifteen minutes from the first try the sailors again pressed into the Highlanders' ground forcing the ball over in the loose. The Scots touched down on a five-yard scrum but were pushed back again for another. On the second scrum the tars forced the soldiers over and Porteous got his hands on the ball as they broke to crash through for the second try. Barker again converted.

Rowland was hurt just before half time but returned to the game in the second half. Ten minutes from the end, Harold Engleson put the game on ice with a smart individual fifty-yard run which carried him across the Wanderers' line for the final try. McInnes again converted.

Both teams showed plenty of spirit in the fixture and gave the spectators many a thrill as they battled from end to end.

J. B. Acland refereed, and the teams were:

Fifth Regiment—McInnes, LeMarquand, H. Engleson, Beales, Bristowe, Robinson, Skilling, Darcy, Seivers, Bullock, Cox, Dowell, Warnock, R. Engleson and Jenson.

Wanderers—Christy, Meade-Robins, Gann, Gilmore, Usher, Golby, Symons, Douglas, Scott, DeBlacque, Hopewell, Parfitt, Mayhew and Dunsinuir.

UNIVERSITY FIELD DAY

It was a great day for Leggat, speedy wing three-quarter for University School, as his team raced through the Fifth Brigade at Mount Toimie to score a 34-to-0 victory and end their first half schedule in the third berth of the intermediate league. Leggat scored five of his team's tries, while Mackie, Mercer, Hedden, Clement and Davis also accounted for other scores. The University School's highly-trained backfield was in dazzling form throughout, running, kicking, passing and tackling splendidly.

A lone try by Burgess early in the second half and converted by Brian Carmichael told the story of the Oak Bay Wanderers' surprising win over the Canadian Scottish. Playing with seven reserves the Oak Bay team had to fight all the way to gain the decision.

HOOP FIXTURES WON BY LUXTON

Luxton, Nov. 30—Saturday evening's double-header hoop games in Luxton Hall proved easy winners for the home teams. Bob Whyte of Victoria refereed. The results of games were:

Luxton were winners with score of 43 to 25.

Luxton were winners with score of 34 to 4.

An exhibition game was staged by the Slingers and Keating, represented by the following:

Slingers—B. Mensie, R. Kersey, G. Robinson, F. Sutton, E. Gibson and B. McKelvey.

Keatings—B. Mitchell, C. Cunningham, F. Atkinson, N. Atkinson, S. Bates and L. Styan.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE—

Stagg feeding the backfield well and Ken Adams and Barker leading the forwards.

Sweeping back from a Scottish attack the forwards forced into the Highlanders' ground. Porteous ran through a broken field and gave the ball to Barker who ran over for the last try. The kick failed.

H. A. Tomlin refereed and the teams lined up as follows: Scottish—Bryden, Horne, Robson, Hunnington, Turgoose, Henderson, Northington, Pollard, B. Forbes, Wharton, Lamb, Bernard, Rowlands, C. Forbes and Wenman.

Navy—Robinson, W. Smith, Putman, McDonald, Hibbert, Banfield, Stagg, Archer, Donald, Sweetman, Sharp, Porteous, Barker, Hall and Ken Adams.

GUNNERS WIN

With a decided edge in the backfield, Fifth Regiment rugger crashed through the weakened Oak Bay Wanderers to a 10-to-5 victory in the other senior game of the day.

Forcing at the start the Gunners several times came within an ace of scoring before Ralph Seivers dived over from a line-out, following a long kick by McInnes to the Oak Bay team's line.

Early in the second stanza the Wanderers equalized, when Ed de Blacque went over after a good broken field run. Douglas converted.

Ten minutes from the end, Harold Engleson put the game on ice with a smart individual fifty-yard run which carried him across the Wanderers' line for the final try. McInnes again converted.

Both teams showed plenty of spirit in the fixture and gave the spectators many a thrill as they battled from end to end.

J. B. Acland refereed, and the teams were:

Leggat scored five of his team's tries, while Mackie, Mercer, Hedden, Clement and Davis also accounted for other scores. The University School's highly-trained backfield was in dazzling form throughout, running, kicking, passing and tackling splendidly.

A lone try by Burgess early in the second half and converted by Brian Carmichael told the story of the Oak Bay Wanderers' surprising win over the Canadian Scottish. Playing with seven reserves the Oak Bay team had to fight all the way to gain the decision.

"Y" SWIMMERS RETAIN TWO B.C. TITLES

Denny Walker Shaves Down Own Record to Hold Provincial Backstroke Crown

Art Stott Again Wins Diving Title; Alena Clamptitt Retains Breaststroke Honors

Shaving three-fifths of a second off his own indoor Canadian long tank 100 yards backstroke record, Denny Walker, Y.M.C.A. swimming ace, retained his provincial championship for that event at the Crystal Garden Saturday evening. He swam one of the fastest backstroke races ever seen in the local tank to lead Sid Summers, outstanding Vancouver contender by thirty feet at the finish. Art Stott, provincial indoor and national outdoor three metre diving champion, defended his British Columbia title against Eddie Hornsby, crack Terminal City spring board ace, and Alena Clamptitt, Vancouver, stood off the bids of Victoria swimmers for her 100 yards breaststroke provincial crown.

Driving through the water with his steady back crawl, Walker took a lead of ten feet on the rest of the field in the final fifty and increased it to thirty by the time he had completed the distance. Sid Summers had little difficulty in outdistancing George Green for second place.

RETAINS BREASTSTROKE TITLE

In the women's 100 yards breaststroke event, Alena Clamptitt maintained a steady pace to forge into the lead just after the start. She finished strong in first place with Pat Copeland and Eleanor Peden staging a merry duel for second. Eleanor just took it by a touch.

Higher degree of difficulty in the dives he performed was chiefly responsible for Stott's victory in the final fifty and increased it to thirty by the time he had completed the distance. Sid Summers had little difficulty in outdistancing George Green for second place.

TWO PENALTIES GIVE SAINTS A WIN AT NANAIMO

Score 4 to 2 Victory Over Coal City Eleven in Pacific Coast Football

Their First Victory of Season; Teams Were Deadlocked 2 to 2 at Interval

Nanaimo, Nov. 30.—Turning in a much better performance than the home team St. Andrew's scored their initial victory in the Pacific Coast Football League here yesterday at the expense of Nanaimo, 4 to 2. The match played on a sticky pitch was witnessed by a crowd of 2,000.

Taking up the attack from the start the Saints had all the opening exchanges. Johnston nearly opened the scoring with a low shot which Williams had difficulty in clearing. Two minutes from the start the Saints received their first of three penalty kicks, when Edmunds handled in an effort to stop Johnston. Stephens made no mistake and the Saints were ahead. Stephens nearly added to the score from the kick-off, but his strong shot was a shade wide. Twenty minutes after the first score Gerard took Johnston's pass, beat Edmunds and shot hard and low for the second counter. In a nice combined effort ten minutes from time Strang shot hard against the post, but Grey, running in fast, took the rebound and drove it past Rabbit. Three minutes later Grey outwitted three opponents and passed neatly to Strang who nodded home the first score. Just at the interval Kula caught the ball in his arms trying to save and the Saints clamored for another penalty, but the referee decided the play was offside.

Fifteen minutes after the start of the second half English handled in the dreaded area and Stephens counted with his second penalty. Nanaimo put on a hard offensive to stave off defeat but were balked by the sterling work of Rabbit, Constable and McKibben. Johnston, lying well down the field received a good pass and made for the goal. Williams advanced, but Johnston lifted the ball over his head where Kula slipped it down. Stephens completed the scoring with the kick seven minutes after the last score. From then until the end Nanaimo were on the attack trying to reduce the deficit, but the Saints defended well.

For the winners, McKibben, Alcock and Stephens starred. Knight, G. Grey and Kula were the pick of Nanaimo.

to work in the final twenty minutes, and with Moore, Fraser and Goldsmith combining nicely, overtook their opponents.

BEAVERS RALLY TO DEFEAT "Y"

Capture First Half Honors in Intermediate "A" Basketball By 28 to 22 Win

Normal School, Blue Ribbon and Beavers turned in wins in the Victoria and District Basketball League games at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium on Saturday night. The Normal School came from behind in the second half to down the Sons of Canada, 30 to 27 in the senior "B" men's game. The Blue Ribbon had little trouble taking the Standard Steam Laundry into camp, 31 to 8 in the women's game, while the Beavers staged a steady uphill fight throughout the second half of the intermediate fixture with the Y.M.C.A. to come from the short end of an 18 to 16 score at half-time to the long end of a 25 to 22 full-time total.

With Caddell and Bradley scoring from all angles, the Y.M.C.A. took an early lead over the Beavers in the intermediate game, and for the first half looked like they were going to spring an upset, but the Beavers set

With every member of the team entering the scoring column, the Blue Ribbon were never pressed in their game with the Standard Steam Laundry, and the score indicates the trend of play. Mary Peden, with eight points, was the leading scorer. Coming from behind in the final minutes of play, the Normal School just managed to squeeze out a win at the expense of the Sons of Canada in the senior "B" men's fixture. The Sons took an 18 to 13 lead in the first half only to see the students catch and pass them in the dying moments to take the game.

Nelson, B.C., Nov. 30.—Fired rage saturated with oil and gasoline had burned a six-foot square under the vestry steps of the Roman Catholic Church at Grand Forks late Saturday evening before B. Pickering, store manager, notified the priest and together they extinguished the blaze.

No clues have been found as to the instigators of the attempted arson. Considerable oil and gasoline had evidently been used.

Creavy Used Sharp Iron to Cut Through

By SOL METZGER

Although Tom Creavy, P.O.A. champion, didn't show well in his first National Open, at Interlachen in 1930, he proved himself a smart golfer. You may remember that this affair was played during a drought with the rough so dry that it was extremely difficult to cut through it with an iron.

Creavy, noting this during his first practice round, immediately borrowed a file. With it he sharpened the blade of his niblick to a razor-like edge.

Thus equipped, Tom stole a march on the field. Thereafter his sharpened blade cut its way through the tough, dry stems of weeds and grasses to land his ball on the fairway without fail, while most of the other competitors looked on in amazement. The moral to this tale is to use the right sort of iron. Let's look into irons to-morrow.

Toronto, Nov. 30.—The Toronto Maple Leafs scored their first victory of the National Hockey League season Saturday evening, when they defeated the Boston Bruins 6 to 5 in an overtime contest that sent 12,000 fans delirious with excitement over the speedy play and most prolific goal scoring game of the season.

The Leafs took a four-goal lead in the first period on goals by Day, Jackson, Bailey and Conacher, while the Bruins failed to tally. Boston outscored the Leafs two to one in the second period, Weiland and Owen turning the trick for the hub team and Conacher getting the Leafs' goal.

Hitchman, Weiland and Barry notched the only goals of the third period to tie the score. Blair won the game for Toronto in the first minute of overtime play when he took Horner's pass and scored. Hitchman was in the penalty box at the time. It was the best game seen locally this season.

The Americans now hold a one-point lead over Les Canadiens, who held the top position until Saturday evening's win put the New York team ahead.

Joe Lamb, who used to wear a Maroon sweater himself, was the arch villain in the defeat of the Montrealers. Joe notched a goal in the first period on a lone effort and then broke a 1 to 1 tie with a neat goal in overtime from Norme Himes's pass. Rabbit McVeigh broke clear of a scramble, ran

Many inexperienced bowlers and others not so experienced make the mistake of running up the foul line and dropping or throwing their ball and then throw their ball at least twenty five feet before it hit the alley. This is not necessary. Even if you score fairly well by throwing your ball, you can score better and more consistently by laying your ball on the alley, and it looks better to the spectators and is better for the alley.

Roll your ball in just the same fashion as if the pins were twenty five feet away and not sixty.

down the ice alone and scored the other Americans' goal.

Baldy Northcott took a pass from Trotter in the second period. His clever shot saved the Maroons from a shutout and tied the score. The Maroons kept play pretty well in New York territory, but they were backslashed by Lamb's goal thirty seconds after the overtime period had begun. McVeigh's effort completed their rout.

Substantial Gains In All Futures In Wheat Market To-day

Winnipeg, Nov. 30.—Wheat prices swung into a sharp upward course on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day and quotations at the close revealed the greatest advances in many seasons. All futures finished from 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 cents stronger than Saturday.

November jumped 1 1/2 and December from 1 to 1 1/2, both to 83 1/2, while July shot up 2 1/2 to 85 1/2.

An increase in export trade and encouragement lent by a strong Liverpool market was credited for the return of strength to the local pit after its faltering days of last week. Trading was fairly active throughout the day, with most of the operations being local.

Exports of moderate volume with several quite active periods but most of the operations were local.

Shipments of North American wheat last week increased over 1,000,000 bushels.

Wheat wheat was slow at fractionally better prices. Coarse grains experienced a good export demand for barley at slightly higher levels.

To-day's Grain Markets

WINNIPEG

(By Logan & Bryan)
Winnipeg, Nov. 30.—Wheat: The sharp break in sterling which dropped to 389 strength in Liverpool, that market closing 3 1/2 to 3 3/4 higher than on Saturday, combined with light world shipments with a decrease in on passage stocks of 2,400,000 bushels, together with reports of rains in southern Argentina, all tended to give the local wheat market a stronger tone to-day and prices advanced more than two cents from the previous close.

Helping along the advance was some buying by export houses and sales of Manitoba area week-end bushels. Another feature was the light offerings which were not burdensome by any means. The Buenos Aires market was higher early but eased off, and at midday 1/2 to 1/4 lower. A private Liverpool cable stated that weekly statistics were healthy, with a better demand for wheat in evidence and that there was more confidence.

The Canadian visible increased only 171,000 bushels. Local demand for cash wheat was not very keen but there was some shipping demand for certain grades to fill out boat space before the season closes. Spreads were mostly unchanged, but No. 1 and 3 northern were changing hands at fractionally better than at the close Saturday. The demand for durum and tough grades was still poor. Little or no change in the flour situation.

Coarse grains—These markets were firm and higher, especially rye and barley. The trade was largely professional, with some buying here against sales in Chicago, while terminal interests were taking December offerings that came out through commission houses.

Oats closed 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, barley 1 1/2 to 1 3/4, rye 2 1/2 to 1 3/4 higher. Flax—This market was higher but there was very little or feature going on, demand apparently was very limited and crushers are not showing much interest, closing 2 1/2 to 1 3/4 higher.

Liverpool due 2 1/2 to 1 3/4 higher on Winnipeg.

COMEDY PAIR AT DOMINION IN NEW SHOW

Laurel and Hardy Take Spotlight in "Pardon Us," Their Latest Comedy

As unlikely as a cabbage and a rose, but indispensable without each other, this is the phrase which applies to America's ace comedy pair, Laurel and Hardy, whose feature-length comedy, "Pardon Us," is now playing at the Dominion Theatre.

The contrast between these two comedians is not merely one of physical bulk, but also one of voice, personality, facial expression and gesture. Stan Laurel is a young Englishman who was formerly under study to Charlie Chaplin in the troupe known as Fred Karno's London Comedians.

Other Hardy evaded a legal career after graduating from the University of Georgia to develop his voice and to follow a circuitous vaudeville path that eventually led him to Hollywood.

Laurel appears slight and insignificant beside Hardy's jaunty 280 pounds and he has a substantial wage that his round colleague will reach the 300 mark before the next presidential election.

When the English Light Opera Company, direct from London, presents the delightful comic opera of Sir Edward German, entitled "Merrie England," at the Royal Victoria Theatre starting next Monday, the very important role of Sir Walter Raleigh will be played by Merthyn Watkins, famous Welsh tenor of the Carl Rosa Opera Company.

In this role of Sir Walter Raleigh he claims he finds one of the happiest mediums of his wide career, while the role gives splendid opportunities for his singing voice, the acting demands are unusually heavy, and to this requirement, Mr. Watkins brings an experience that, after several years, during which he has established himself as solidly as an actor as he is famed as a singer. In the intervals, when not appearing in grand opera, or on the light opera stage, he has been in demand for concert work throughout all England, and his recitals are considered a musical event of more than ordinary interest, in whatever city he appears.

He will also be heard when this same company presents on Friday and Saturday, December 11 and 12, with a special matinee on Saturday, "Opera of Opera," with the Garden Scene from Faust, the quartette from Rigoletto and Cavalleria Rusticana in its entirety.

Mr. Jones told the meeting that an increase in taxation next year is inevitable. "We will endeavor to prevent as little increased taxation as possible," he said, "but we expect some little increase will be necessary. The greatest economy is being exercised in every department. I am not going to say that I am going to balance the budget at the end of this year, but I do not expect there will be a very large deficit or anything near that appears in some of the other provinces."

"About our financial stability there is no cause for alarm," he said, "British Columbia has never defaulted on its payments, and never will. Some services would have to be cut, he said."

Duncan Juniors Held Work Sale

Duncan, Nov. 30.—The Girls' and Junior W.A. of St. John's Church held a concert and sale of work in St. John's Hall on Friday evening, Rev. A. Bischoff, acting as chairman.

The Juniors had a well-filled work stall, in charge of Mrs. Langlois, Mrs. D. Douglas and Mrs. P. Macpherson. A candy stall was conducted by the Juniors, and the girls and boys held under the supervision of their president, Mrs. J. Fletcher.

The programme was arranged by Mrs. A. Bischoff and Mrs. F. Macpherson, and included vocal and piano solos, dances, recitations, plays by the Juniors and the girls, and shadow pictures.

COMEDIAN HAS DRAMATIC ROLE

R. Woolsey and Anita Louise in "Everything's Rosie" at Empire Theatre

It is hard to believe that the comedian, Robert Woolsey, the smart-cracking Woolsey of "The Cuckoo," "Half Shot at Sunrise," "Hook, Line and Sinker," and "Cracked Nuts," has been suffering these many months because he has not really had a chance.

Years before Woolsey was snapped up by Flo Ziegfeld to be featured with Bert Wheeler in "Rio Rita," years before he was featured in the movies at all, he was the possessor of a different sort of fame than that he now enjoys.

LINDA WATKINS PLAYS LEAD IN CAPITOL STORY

Pretty Young Newcomer to the Screen Heads Cast of Players in "Sob Sister"

Few young newcomers to the screen have been entrusted in their first role with a part of the importance of that one given Linda Watkins, who makes her film debut in the title role of the Fox drama, "Sob Sister," showing to-day at the Capitol Theatre.

More than twenty-five Hollywood favorites and twice as many Broadway celebrities were given screen tests before this delectable blue-eyed, blonde young actress was selected to portray the girl reporter who shut her eyes to her own romance to delve into the love lives of others for her paper.

Miss Watkins comes to the screen fresh from a series of Broadway triumphs, the last and perhaps the greatest of which was "June Moon." Upon her arrival in Hollywood she was immediately chosen to play opposite Montenegro and Helen Mack as one of the three Fox debutante stars of 1931, and according to reports from critics and fans who have seen her in this, her first picture, the choice was a wise one.

In "Sob Sister," Miss Watkins plays opposite a young player, who, like herself, was given a significant role in his first picture. He is James Dunn, who made screen history with his characterization of Eddie in "Bad Girl." He plays the role of an ex-reporter on a very conservative paper, who matches his journalistic wits against those of Miss Watkins.
